THE ROAD TO SUCCESS IS ALWAYS...

Good-bye To An Old Friend, Hello To An Exciting Future!

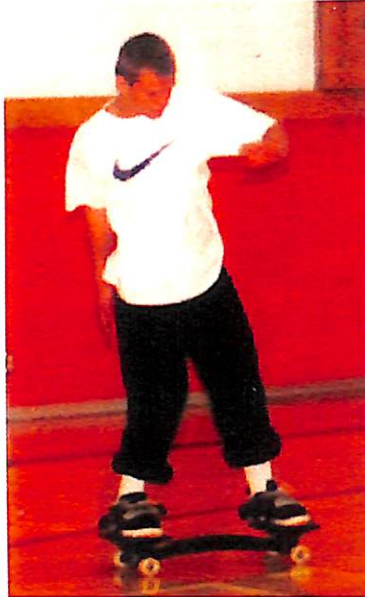

After 75 years of student's questions, answers, tears and laughter, "CHS"-Cokeville Sr./Jr. High School, and yes, even the lingering evidences of the 1923 Elementary School-closes its doors. As the echo of "Good-bye" is heard through the old halls, a friendly "Hello" begins to ring through the framework of our future school.

At first there is only a hint of what is to come. Then we see walls, a roof, and paint and a school successfully completed...or is it? 1923 did not see the successful completion of the old school. Down through the years, each lesson-whether in a textbook or in life-has been a part of the success of CHS.

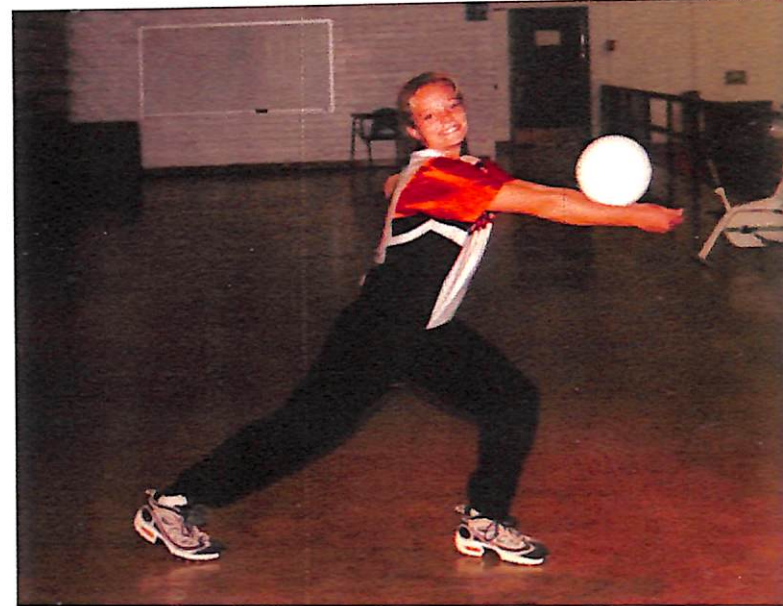

Neither is the success of school ever really finished, but continues with each new lesson and lives in each memory. As it is in building a school, so it is in life. Here at CHS we find that success is felt not so much in the "structure" as in the "instruction." In life, not so much in the "being" as in the "becoming."

THE ROAD TO SUCCESS IS ALWAYS UNDER CONSTRUCTION!

Colt Reece shows everyone how to use the snake-board.

Dedication

By Andra (Birch) Petersen

In appreciation for his untiring and dedicated service at CHS, the Yearbook Staff dedicates this edition to Mr. Birch.

Glenn L. Birch was born on June 21, 1946 in Montpelier, Idaho to Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Birch of Cokeville, Wyoming. He was the second son of four boys and was raised in Cokeville. He attended Cokeville Elementary and Jr./Sr. High School where he was active in basketball, track, music and student government. As a senior, he was elected student body president. Mr. Birch graduated from CHS in 1964, and then continued his education at Brigham Young University.

While attending BYU he was again active in music, performing with the Oratorio Choir. During his junior year, he married his high school sweetheart Mary Lue Thornock on September 1, 1967. He graduated from BYU in the spring of 1969 with a B.A. in Secondary Education with a Spanish Language major and an English minor.

His first teaching job was in Rock Springs, Wyoming at Rock Springs High School where he taught Spanish and directed several plays and musicals. During the school year of 1971 the faculty staged a production of Man of La Mancha, and Mr. Birch played the lead role of Don Quixote.

In 1973 Mr. Birch began teaching English and Spanish at Cokeville High as well as coaching track, supervising the publication of the yearbook, and again directing plays.

In 1977 he took on the enormous project of doing the first ever musical production at CHS. Oklahoma! Was a great success and even went on the road to several surrounding communities. Mr. Birch directed 13 more musicals and was also the technical director of several more productions under the direction of Mr. John Miller and Mr. Royce Backman.

In 1979 and again in 1989 under Mr. Birch's supervision, the high school yearbook, The Rambouillet, won the state runner-up award in the 1-A division of the state yearbook competition. Mr. Birch continued to supervise the yearbook staff at CHS until 1998.

Mr. Birch has also come to be known as the voice of the panthers, announcing the Panther football games for many years.

Many of his students have often said how grateful they were for Mr. Birch's training them in writing, particularly in the writing of research papers. For many years he took his senior English classes to a large university library to experience first hand the research paper process that they would have to go through many times as college students.

Mr. Birch and his wife are the parents of six children and have six grandchildren. Mr. Birch has served the community of Cokeville as a member of the Pine Creek Ski Patrol, a member of the Bear River Fire Board of Control, teaching Western Wyoming College Outreach computer classes and in many other areas. He has always been willing to help people in the community by setting up sound systems for community events, helping with computer problems or any other need.

Mr. Birch continues to enjoy his hobbies of amateur radio, computers, skiing, genealogy, hunting and reading. His main joy however will always be seeing the students of Cokeville High School succeed.

 This Yearbook Staff wishes to thank Br. Birch for all his help. Without his assistance this book would not have been possible.

Who knew that 17 years later Mr. Birch would be teaching at his Alma mater!

The size of the building has nothing to do with the size of these students' appetites.

This year was the beginning of our new condensed version of the Cokeville High School halls. The locker module was very efficient in many ways. It reduced the number of people who, in previous years, would trip on the many legs extended into the old high school halls. It also became a very comfortable place to take a nap or to just get away from the roaring crowds.

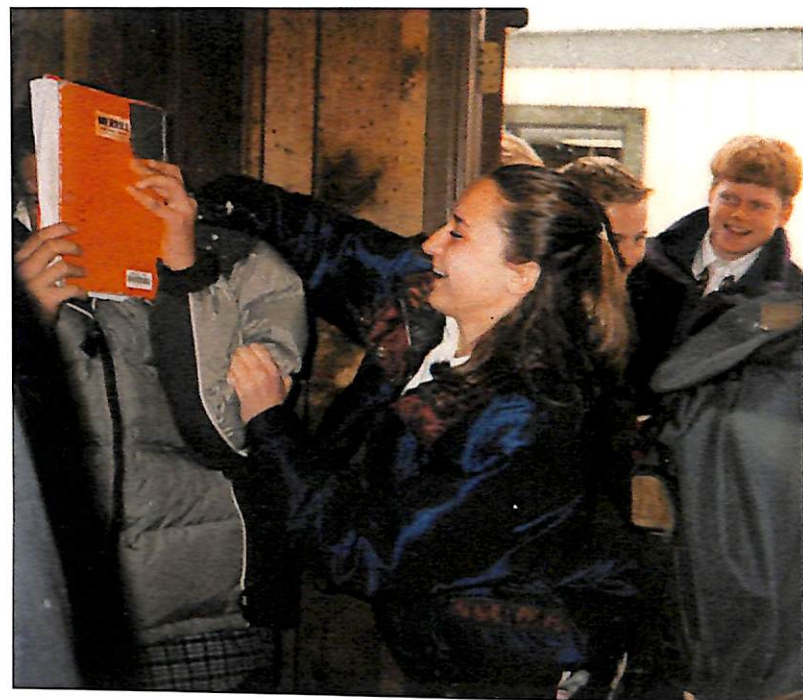

Another place used to get away from the labors of the day was the "Lunch Corner." Located in the back of the auditorium stage, our lunchroom was cozy, if nothing else. However, it was so confined that not everyone could eat at one time. When people were not eating in the lunchroom, they found time to eat at the new A&W.

Yes, Virginia, there is life after modules!

"Don't mess around with my lunch hour, dude," snarls Jana Dayton.

Jordan Willis and Jade Pope observe Violet Teichert "whitewashing" Courtney Birch. Snowball fights were just one of the many things happening in the locker room module.

Jed Moore watches the game as Camille Teichert and Heather Hammond obviously differ about whether CHS ranks #1 or #2.

Adam Burton wins "Best dressed" on Homecoming's "A blast to the past day." Obviously Adam M. Teichert and Colt Reece aren't impressed.

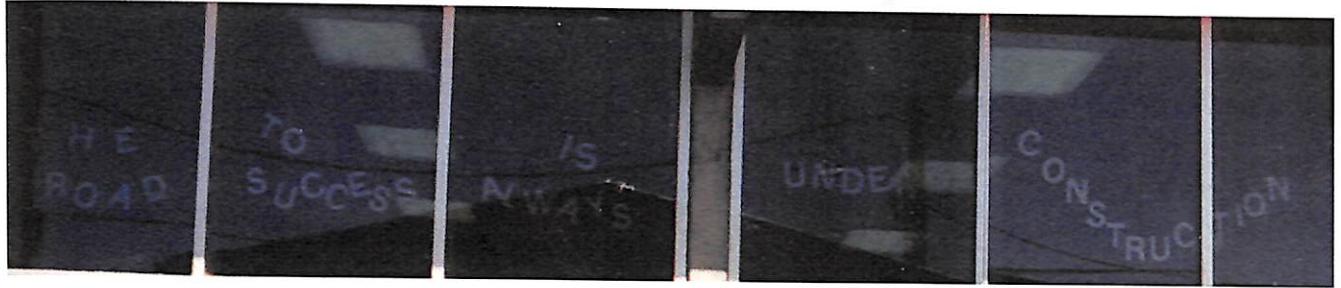

The Panther flame is burning strong on a cool autumn night.

Taffy Teichert, Jesika Mackey, Maurice Roberts, Colby Roberts, Shari Thompson, and Jesse Birch are being led in a cheer by Ashlee Teichert after a morning assembly at CHS.

Traditions are made to be BROKEN!

As we travel onward to success, Homecoming comes along to boost our spirits. Everyone was full of Panther Pride. It was a Roaring Week!

Homecoming '98-'99

Homecoming '98-'99 was held on September 28 through October 2. The spirit days were as follows: Opposite Gender Day, Construction Day, Trends of the Past Day, Summer Day, and Panther Day.

The Juniors won the Float Decoration and the Sophomores won the Hall Decorations. Our King and Queen were Desi Moore and Colby Roberts.

This year a tradition was broken. In the years past, the people who participated in Football, Volleyball, Pep Club and Cheerleading were the only ones who could vote for Homecoming King and Queen. This year we voted on and passed to allow everyone to vote for King and Queen.

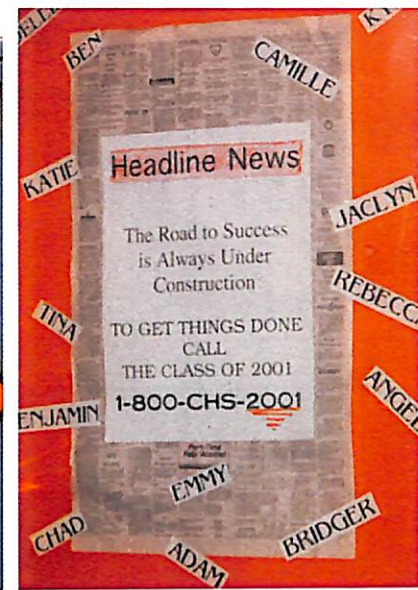

We played against Shoshoni for football and Big Piney for volleyball and won both, making it a double victory. It was an awesome week and everyone had tons of fun!

The Seniors are working at making CHS the Best!

The Juniors are pressing on "Under Construction."

The Sophomores make Headline News!

Momma said there'd be dates like this.

To quote some of the students: "...this Sadie Hawkins was the best ever."; "...this was the funnest dance I have been to in a long time." Especially fun was the Disc Jockey being up on the landing in the gym with the students. He could tell when a slow song was needed or when the energy was running high for the fast songs! Matching plaids, chosen by the girl, were decided on for most couples to wear. Since Sadie Hawkins is a fund-raiser for the cheerleaders, a small entrance fee was collected. The landing was decorated in blue and yellow. Our theme song was, 'To Make You Feel My Love,' recorded by Garth Brooks.

Jesse Birch shows off his physique for all the girls.

Colt Reece and Tim Davis come to Sadie Hawkins as the "odd couple."

Magic Moments

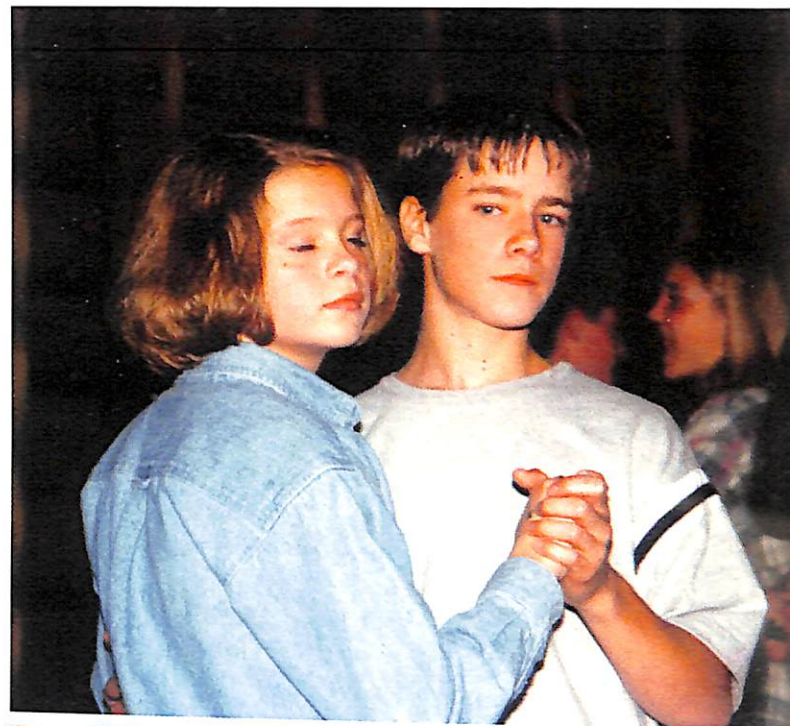

Two dancers "too cute for words" are Tina Hammond and Devin Hill.

Tami Teichert tells Bridger Mackey, "Stay off my toes!"

Eva Cox and Russell Reece take a breather from the dance floor.

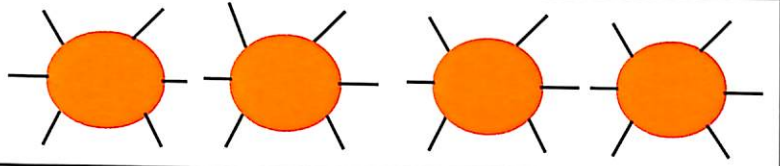

Tatum Teichert is in her own dream world as she dances with Jared Watson.

Even though the yearbook was not offered as a credit class and had to be done as a volunteer project, the staff started out with a great deal of interested workers. A total of ten staff members started out the year and by January they were down to four. More came and went before the year was over; however, this staff was the nearest to finishing a yearbook on schedule since the 1995-96 yearbook. The sudden shortage of staff made each member wonder, "Was it something I said?"

*Nobody's perfect, but the developing crew comes close.

The only thing that turned out in this picture was Mr. Birch's bald spot.

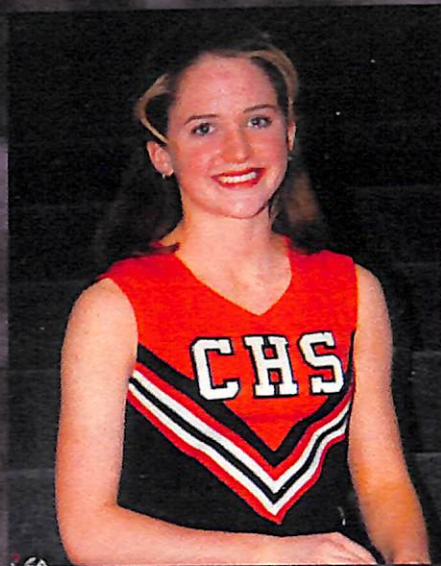

□Image is everything□ when developing pictures in the □dark room,□ located downstairs next to the girls□ locker room in the gym! The photo-developers for the yearbook had a pretty hard time due to the small amount of space. The ten students had to be divided into two groups of five to make room for them as well as the equipment and Mr. Forrest. With conditions like that, who can blame them if they made a few mistakes.

The Panther Cheerleaders "riding high" during Homecoming Parade.

For Varsity cheerleaders we were a somewhat unexperienced group. We had a lot to learn, but it was great fun!

Football season was mostly spent learning the ropes and laughing at mistakes. When basketball season started we got better and began to have even more fun. As time for State Competition rolled around we put together two good routines. Hard work paid off and we were able to bring home two 1st place trophies!

All the girls were great fun and got along really well. We even learned Ashlee Teichert wishes she could flip little tomatoes at people and JoEllen Grandy is the Lady in Red. To sum it all up we had a Stellar year!

Camille Teichert really trusts her fellow cheerleaders for the impressive tower during half-time.

The girls take turns selling snacks during the games to earn enough money and points to attend the State Basketball events. Money charged for Homecoming dance helps pay the girls' way to State Basketball.

Pep Club members Diana Nate and Sheila Holden also enjoy eating as well as selling the food. They are being served by Pep Club members Emily Martinez and Emmy Griffin.

Pantherettes was a blast not only for the seniors, but for everyone else as well. We had some struggles, but managed to pull it all off and became a team. Going to State, everyone had an exciting and successful time, but yet full of butterflies. With learning and a lot of cooperation, we took 1st place in the Dance Division performing "Crush". Everyone had a fantastic year, full off fun dancingg our hearts out!

Three Strikes, You're Out!

It took Bob Coates choosing a movie over a performance to prove Mr. Backman is serious with his strict rules of attendance for Celebration. Maurice Roberts was his replacement.

A highlight was doing songs from the Broadway show "Grease." Bridger Mackey did an excellent job singing "Those Magic Changes." The group was a hit! The girls dressed up in poodle skirts while the boys dressed in pegged pants and tight shirts. Each performance was enjoyed by everyone.

Many of the "stars" for Celebration graduated. We got with some of them and asked what their final remarks or favorite memories were:

Jesika Mackey: "I love to sing and dance. It was fun to be in."

Jennifer Pieper: "It's great to do in my free time! (What free time?)"

Desi Moore: "It was fun and a new challenge. It gave me a chance to try and learn new things. Overall it was a great experience and I would do it all over again if I could."

Bridger Mackey and Rebecca Pieper demonstrate how to do the "dip" to Jed Moore and Jennifer Pieper.

School Song

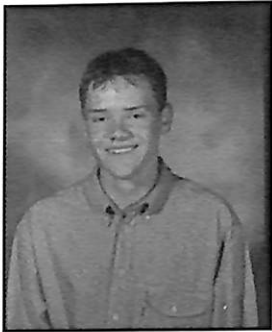

We're loyal to you, CHS
To your colors we're true, CHS
We'll back you to stand as the best in the land
With our head, heart, and hand, CHS.
Rah! Rah!

We'll cheer for our dear Cokeville High
Her banners will fly to the sky
All hail to our alma mater
To give her praise and honor
All hail to our dear old high!

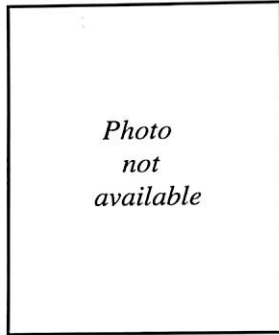

Fling out that dear old flag and carry it through
You've got your sons and daughters fighting for you
Your colors fly before us, Orange and Black o're us
Loud rings the chorus
Rah! Rah! Rah!

Amid the high old hills surrounding the land
For honor, labor, and for learning to stand
Unto thee we pledge our heart and hand
Our alma mater, CHS!

Mr. Glenn Birch

What a year--Murphy's law in full effect: modules, blizzards and mud in the "halls," accreditation, WyCAS! Why do unpleasant things pile up? Because when it rains, it pours (right through the windows and doors of the modular classrooms). We had made up our minds that Cokeville Modular High School wouldn't be all that bad, but as the year wore on, it got pretty old, especially as other undesirable events complicated things. The accreditation visit from the State Department of Education put everyone on edge. Some teachers started doing things that they had never done before, like writing on the board the state standard that today's lesson would teach. New graduation requirements in English, brought the age-old complaint: "Why do they always make changes that effect our class first?" To top it all off, the WyCas Test (state standardized tests in Math and English) was a real monster--twelve hours of trying to do your best. Everyone, including teachers and administrators, agreed that it was TOO MUCH! In fact the school district administration sent a letter to the State Department of Education listing all of the problems with the test.

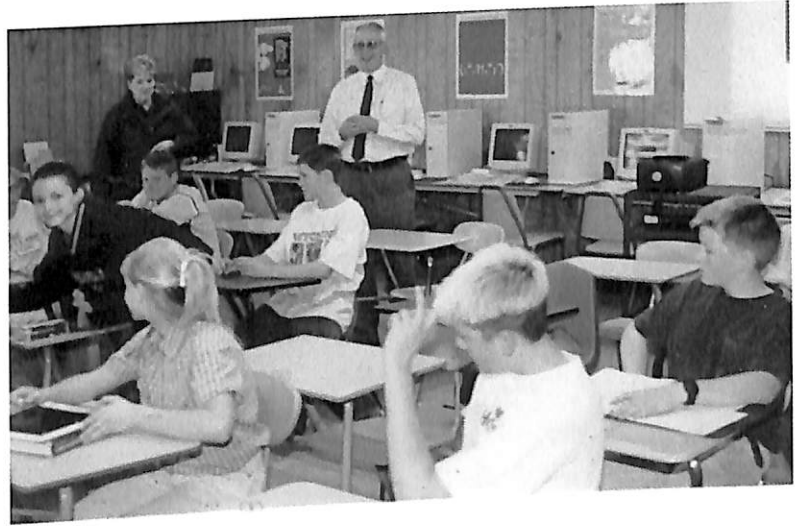

It was basically a pretty strange year with a lot of challenges, but hopefully it caused us to grow; If nothing else, at least it made us appreciate having a real school building.

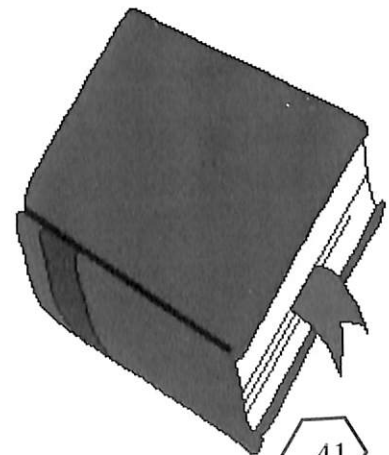

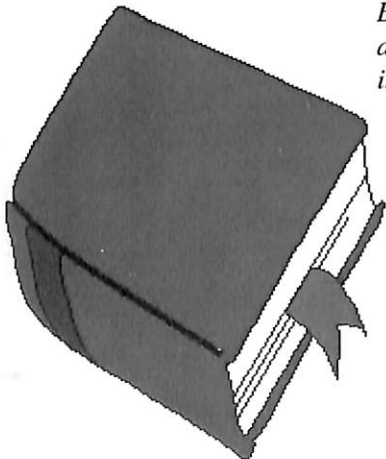

Tyson Teichert watches the clock as the deadline for English report nears.

Jesse Julander watches as Mr. Birch chastises Ashlee Teichert and Shari Thompson for playing with the scanner.

Mr. Birch laughs wickedly as he keeps his Freshman English class in five minutes after the "lunch bell" rings.

Mr. Royce Backman

Oh No, Not Again!

History does repeat itself. For a second time in a row Mr. Backman had to live up to his agreement that if any of the three high school music groups--Band, Choir, or Celebration--received a Superior (1) at Music Festival he would allow the students to give him a creative haircut. The groups were so outstanding that all three received a Superior. To bad he only has one head. Maybe the groups were always ready to perform because all music classes were held in the auditorium due to construction on the new high school.

The soft seats of the auditorium are far more comfortable than the traditional desks as the music students work on theory worksheets.

Mr. Backman ponders on the excuse he will give his wife for his new hair cut.

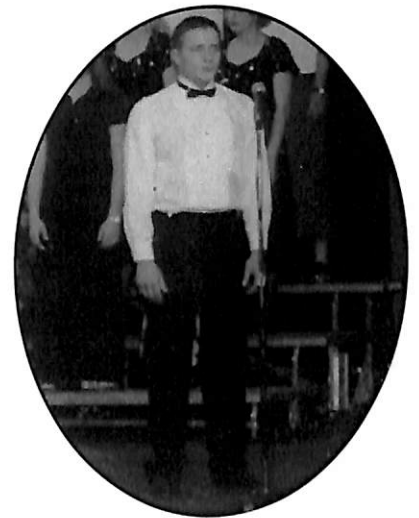

Bob Coates and Scott Mower stand by and watch as Bridget Mackey makes sure that Mr. Backman lives up to his promise.

MRS. JUDY BROOKS

What Do You Mean Tempermental?

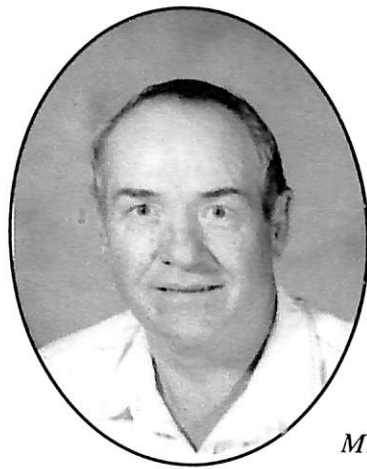

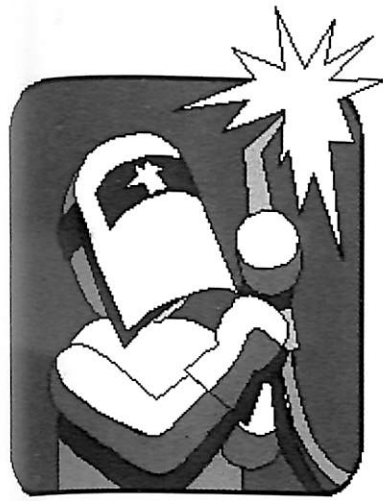

Not only did Mrs. Brooks and her students have to cope with the artist's reputation of being tempermental, but because they were located in the rear of the auditorium they also had to deal with the "music" of the band classes. If that wasn't enough, they also had to haul water to the classroom as there was no water available to them.

However, a reprieve was received when the art classes were able to move into Mr. Birch's old classroom. It proved to be an ideal setting for art: large window, storage space and, yes, WATER. Sounds as if Mrs. Brooks has a good reason to be tempermental!

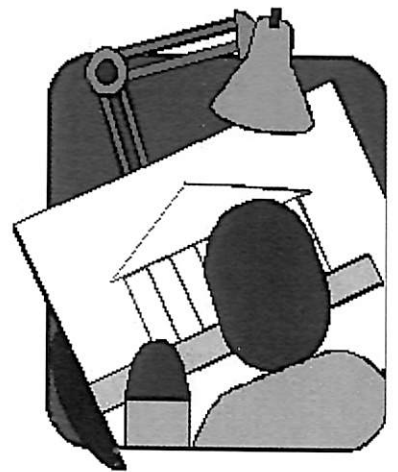

Are these the hands of another Picasso?

Modular Problems

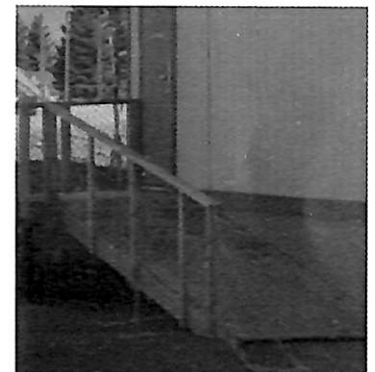

The shop classes have been affected more than the academic classes. It is difficult to hold a lab-type class in a modular. The welding classes found a home in the County Shop, thanks to the county Commissioners and County employee, Wayne Harmon. All other lab classes, i.e., woodworking, mechanics, metals mechanics, and power mechanics had to be suspended due to lack of space and equipment. The building trades lab built sheds and porches to keep busy. The last year and a half in the modules has been difficult time for shop classes. Nevertheless, we can say, "Been there, done that!"

We're Sick of It!

He's "sick of talking," and the students are sick of listening to him. Science is not the same without the periodic relief of experiments and labs. While the new school is under construction, the students are stuck in a modular, learning science, and must "take his word for it" rather than seeing for themselves. However, Mr. Forrest was able to teach his students successfully. Test scores were the measurements of how well the students learned through listening without "hands-on" experience!

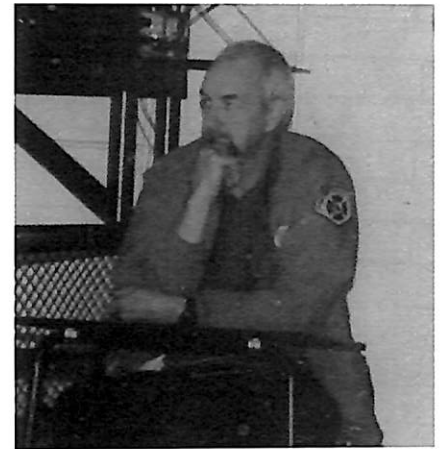

The pupils are not the only ones being affected by the change. Mr. Forrest is having a tough time keeping everyone's attention and you need not wonder anymore where his gray hair is coming from.

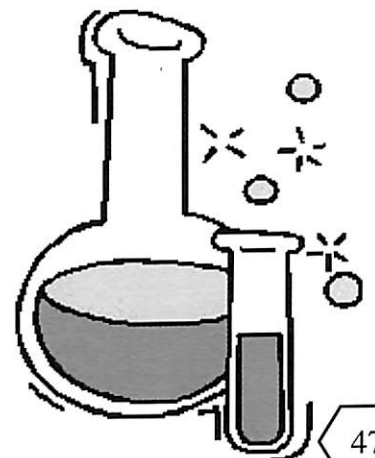

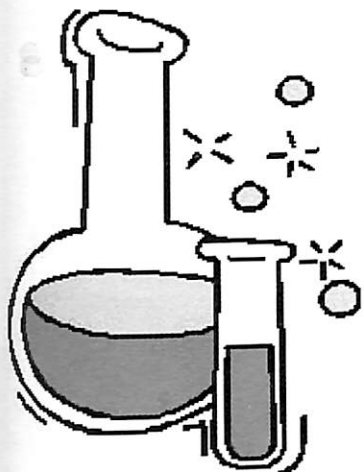

"Back rubs" should be part of Biology standards according to Kylee Hill and Camille Teichert.

A few years ago Mr. Metcalfe and Mr. Birch began integrating American History and English III. This helped the students to combine assignments and save themselves from such monotonous work. Since the modules have been put in, Mr. Birch and Mr. Metcalfe have come together under the same module roof. Having to share a module and phone after being separated by such a distance in the old school, it certainly has made their classes run much smoother. The only thing separating their communication is a door, of which Mr. Metcalfe is very proud. On top of all that, Mr. Birch has the privilege of hearing all of Mr. Metcalfe's jokes (at least three times each).

Moving from classrooms to modulars is hard enough on the students and teachers. The desks, chairs, maps, books and other classroom necessities are another matter, especially the computers. Nonetheless, Mr. Taylor diligently strives to help keep all the classrooms "connected to the world" via the Internet. It took quite a bit of doing, but we are up and running, thanks to his expertise and faithful work.

Mr. Taylor supervised the improvement and along with the help of students Kendall Teichert, Jed Moore, Thad Call and Nathan Hill, maintains the School's Web page. Smiles Were Our Only Sunshine!

The school's motto for the year, "The road to success is always under construction," certainly held true for the resource room--located in the back of the auditorium. We undertook many new challenges and handled them well. We learned to work in closer, cramped quarters with the accompaniment of the band and choir. We tried to block out the added noise with our own activities. One of the activities was a new science program for Sarah and Nathan. The bare walls and doors were soon covered with pictures, reports, and poetry about animals and insects. The students really had success in this area. One of the major drawbacks was looking into mirrors instead of looking out windows. We did miss the sunlight and watching the weather change. We also didn't like the long, cold hallway to and from the rest of the school. The resource room teachers and students passed the construction adversity with all kinds of success.

Nathan Roberts and Sarah Pieper's smiles show how proud they are of their accomplishments.

Shhhh...

Mrs. Genera Robinson has had a hard year. Her librarian ears are not accustomed to the amount of noise which has been produced by the construction day after day. After spending a long time at her headquarters in the auditorium, she finally was able to move from the construction site into a module which was as far from the construction as possible. Mrs. Robinson will probably never forget the numerous times she yelled at the construction workers to be quiet.

"When are they going to get me an IBM," shrieks Mrs. Robinson.

A Traveling Life For Me

Living in Cokeville and working at Star Valley High School turned Mr. Wade Fiscus into quite a traveling man. His appreciated visits to CHS were rare and they only happened when desperately needed, however, he did help out quite a bit with the Heratio Alger Seminar. We really miss his constant expert guidance and scholarship knowledge.

Mr. Fiscus takes a break from his exhausting computer game to give some guidance to the yearbook photographer.

Who are you today?

"Do we have to speak English to sub for Mr. Birch?" quips Jill Clark

Starting her new career in school, Sheri Kemp is voted "favorite full time aide" by Daneen Taylor and Angela Weber. Siskel and Ebert give her two thumbs up.

Shantell Swenson always has help, thanks to aide Dixie Roberts.

Carol Reed, when not busy with yearbook or her new baby Cheyenne, is a great substitute.

"Who are you today?" is the most common question that subs Carol Reed, Eva Clark, Trudy Hatch, Stephanie Weston, Lynn Pope, Jill Clark, Margaret Jamison, and Karen Thornock are asked by students. Subs are a very important part of CHS, especially when the sports teams head off to Regionals and State games. When the coaching staff, team members, and supporters for the team are gone, the school is full of substitutes.

This is the first year the subs were required to be certified by the State of Wyoming Teachers Association. Certification classes were taught by High School Principal Larry Daniel and Elementary Principal Beverly McCreary.

Another important part of CHS is the help from aides. Cindy Bird, Dixie Roberts, and Sheri Kemp (Character One) are always busy helping students and teachers. Thank you aides and subs.

Have Office Will Travel!

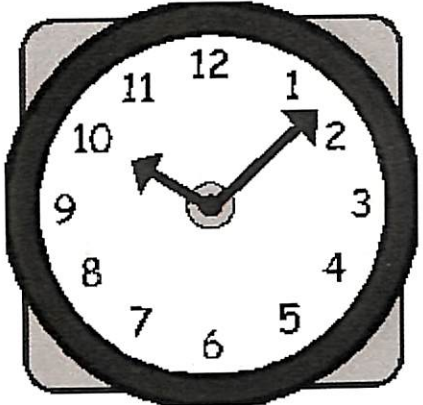

It wasn't enough that Stella Mackey had to keep her regular duties going as school secretary, she also had to deal with moving her office to three different locations throughout the school year. In March of 1999 she made the move from the office which had been her "home" since she was first hired as Cokeville High School secretary, to the foyer of the new auditorium. Later, after the '98-'99 school year had well begun, she packed up her office again and moved to a module which was placed right along side the other modules in front of the New Gym. As the school year came to a close, the modules were taken away and she was forced to move her office into the Green Room of the auditorium. Even through all of this, Mrs. Mackey's secretarial duties, nor her cheerleader squad, never suffered.

Mrs. Stella Mackey does some more paper work.

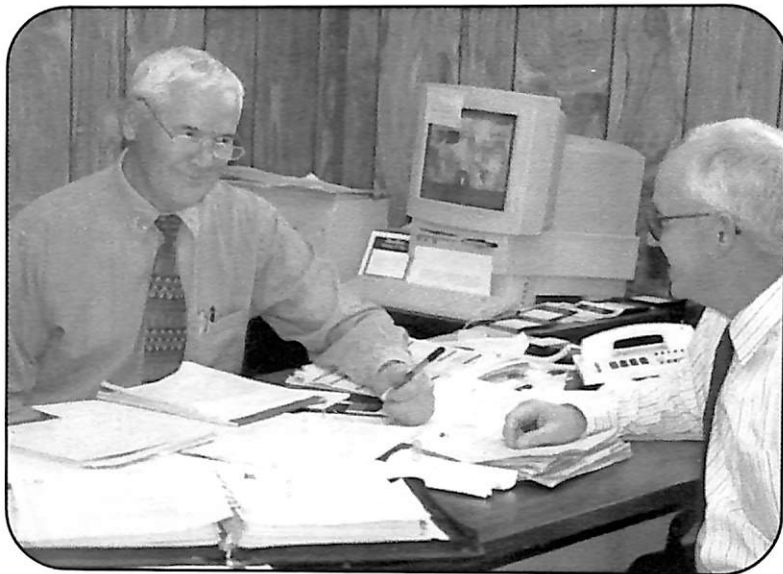

Mrs. Stella Mackey proudly hands out the awards to her crew of cheerleaders.

Neither Rain, Sleet, nor Snow...

...could keep Mr. Larry Daniel from the needy classrooms or offices scattered across the school's broad campus. Be assured that our principal walked many a mile throughout the year to reach his different duties without having too much of a shortage of rain, sleet, and snow. This extra effort that he made due to the construction of modules did not ease up during the year either. He, along with Mrs. Mackey trekked to three different office locations which just proved their loyalty and commitment to CHS. With all the different directions they have been going, who can blame them if they have to think for a minute to remember which way is up.

The janitors, JeNiene Nostaja and Dennis Anderson, had quite a job to do whenever they were asked to clean up the "halls." Not only were the "halls" not heated, it seemed that no amount of broom work would ever rid the dirt road behind the gym of its mud and dust. The new asphalt road was always developing holes and mud puddles, and the auditorium must have gained at least two-hundred pounds worth of mud every time the lunch bell "rang." It was a dirty job but someone had to do it and the janitors did a super job.

It's Not All Bad

Surely there were mixed feelings by the cooks about the facilities they had for cooking. Of course there were many drawbacks. They had to make more simpler meals, and that twenty meal menu must have gotten very boring by the end of the year. They could only use the oven for one dish per day. They had to transport the food twice (from the elementary to the high school and then back). They obviously were under very heavy mental stress and probably came home from work virtually crushed by the pressure, but, hey,-- at least they didn't have to wash the

We Are The Champions

The Cokeville Panthers proved their superiority in the championship football game played in Cokeville. They defeated the Upton Bobcats, 12-7. This final victory finished Cokeville's season with a 10-0 record!

The Panthers were led by seniors, Jesse Birch (quarterback), Colby Roberts (running back), Derrick Thompson (end). The offensive line consisted of Russell Reece, Darcy Holden, and Bobby Coates. Great teamwork helped them become champions. Coach Dayton said, "The kids played hard, they deserved to win."

Proud to be Americans!

Staff and students at Cokeville Elementary School held their Veterans Day program on Veterans Day. This was an outstanding program involving grades one through six. Patriotic songs sung by the classes and a featured speaker made up the program. Many tears were shed during a tribute to the veterans, which was a slide presentation put to music. If every school in America held a program like this once a year, there's little doubt that many of our problems in society would cease to exist. Respect for our country, respect for veterans, respect for people of all ages, and appreciation for our wonderful USA, were just a few things felt in the auditorium that day. The veterans of Cokeville were also introduced and brought up on stage to be thanked and to show the elementary school students, and others in attendance, how many people from Cokeville have helped keep America free.
