DRIVEN

What Drives you? While you advance through life, take a moment to mull over this year's memories of high school. To the seniors, has it really been four years? Are we ready to set out and begin the rest of our lives? Every decision made from now on will affect where our final destination may be. To the juniors, hold on. You only have one year left. Enjoy your last year; it flies by faster than you think. To the sophomores, you're finally about to be upper classmen. Take some chances, work hard, there is time to play later. And finally, to the freshmen, you are climbing the social ladder; you are no longer at the bottom, but you still have your place. . . don't forget it. You'll get older soon enough—don't try to rush it.

Here at SVHS there is a constant drive to go above and beyond what was thought possible. However subtle or hidden it may have seemed, we constantly achieved greatness and discovered moments of triumph along the bumps and obstacles of our crazy road trip known as high school.

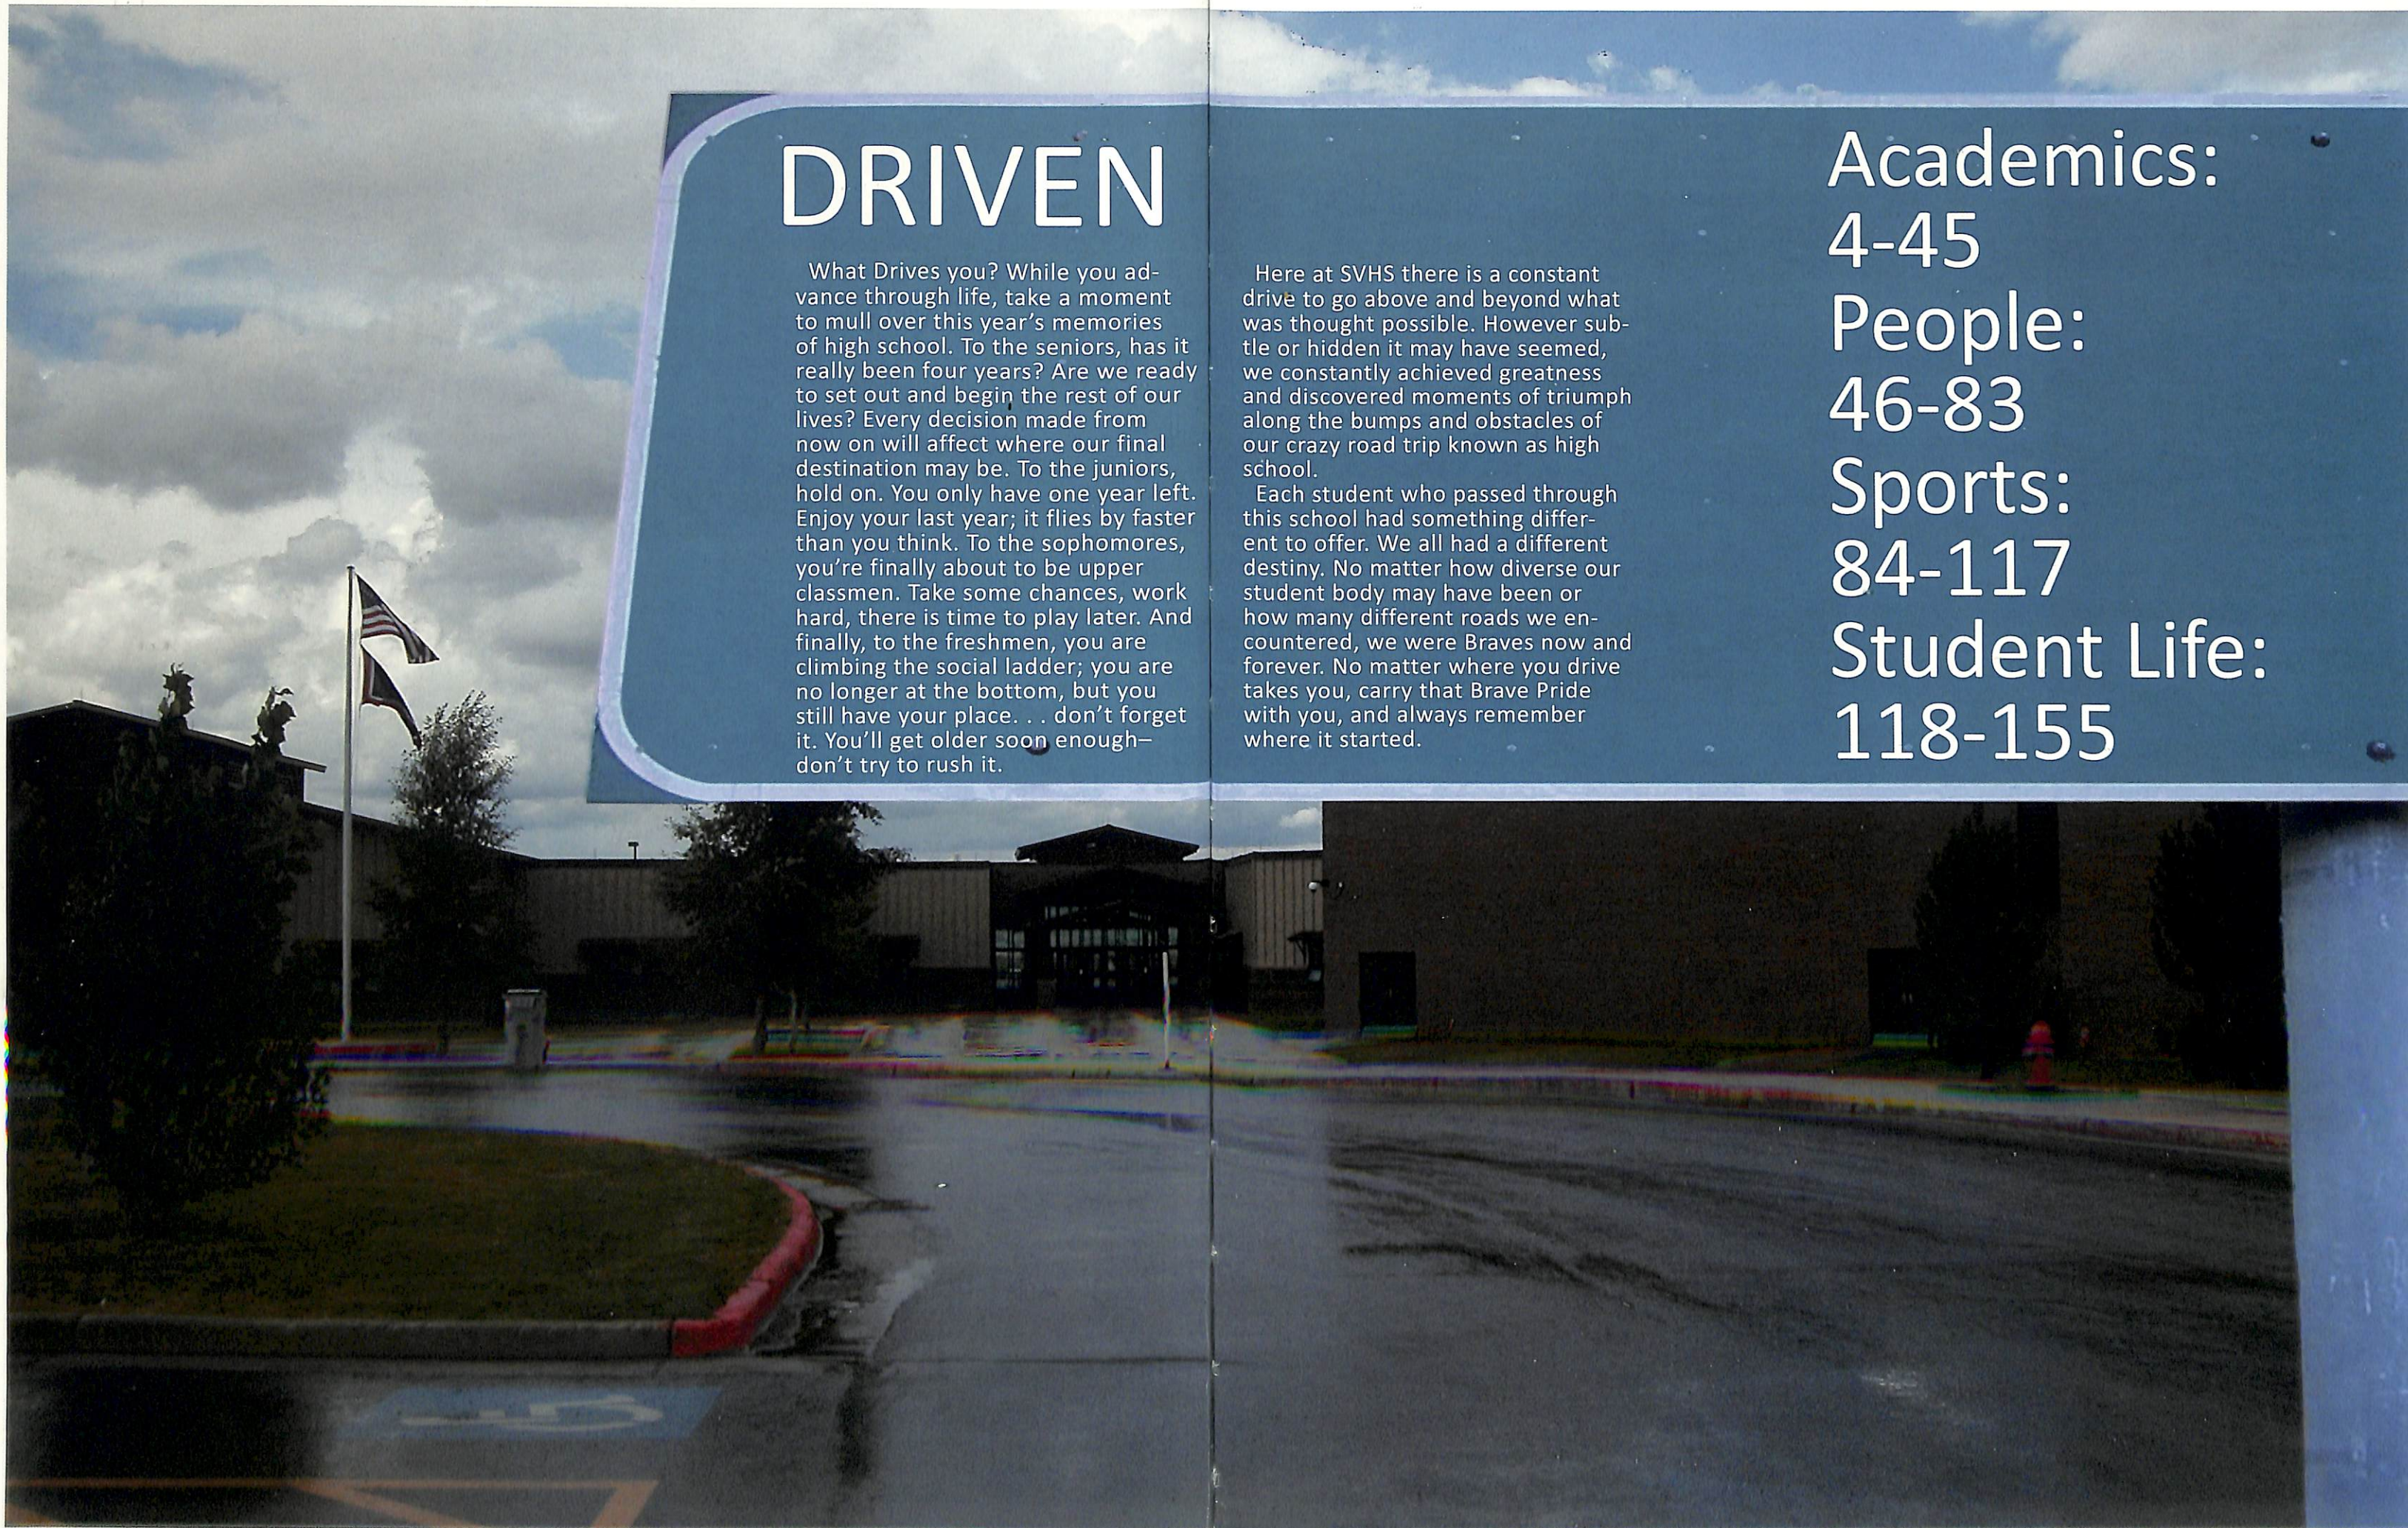

Each student who passed through this school had something different to offer. We all had a different destiny. No matter how diverse our student body may have been or how many different roads we encountered, we were Braves now and forever. No matter where you drive takes you, carry that Brave Pride with you, and always remember where it started.

Math Challenges and Rewards

If something comes too easily, we tend to value it lightly. Math never came easily to most of the students who took it, but what they learned they valued because they came by that learning with lots and lots of work.

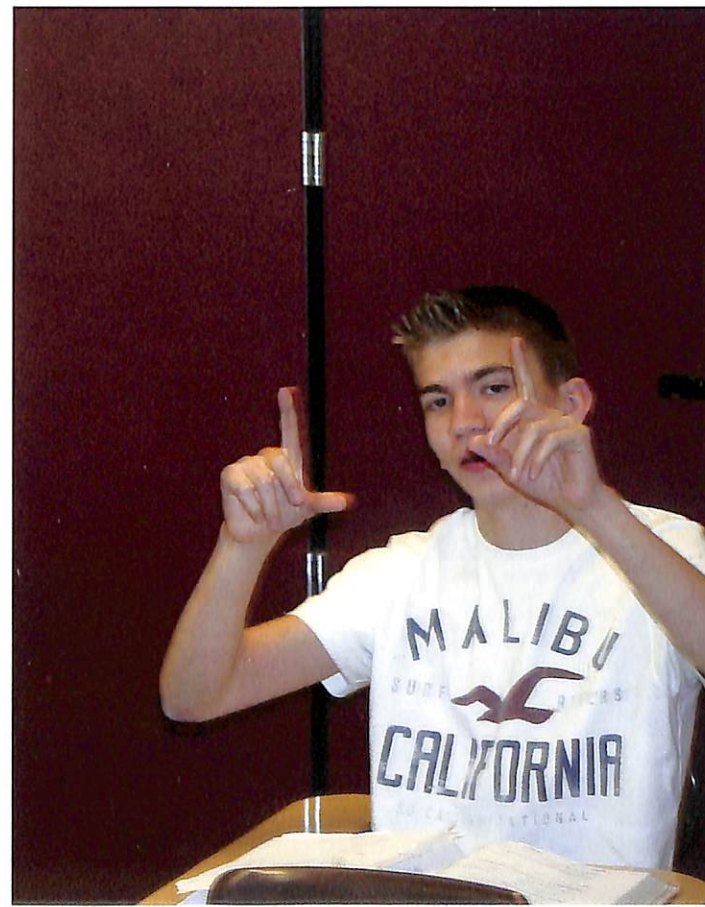

Sophomore Jessa Kierstead tried to explain her feelings on math by saying, "Parents look at texts and say, 'Why put numbers in words?' Kids look at math and say, 'Why put numbers in math?'" Chris Jenkins echoed Jessa's struggles when he said, "I didn't have any trouble with math until the teacher tossed in the alphabet." Math wasn't easy, but nothing worthwhile in life is. Thanks to our good teachers and top notch learning aids, we all got through math and took valuable knowledge with us.

ENGLISH

Students Connect English to Life

English has long been considered the study of life.

One of the things that kept kids entertained in English this year included the wide variety of books covered throughout the year.

"I love how the things in King Arthur apply to us today," said senior Brooke Anderson after reading Le Morte De Arthur in senior English.

"It's strange to see how superstitious people were and how harsh their punishments were," said junior Cheyenne Erickson about The Crucible.

As students progressed through high school, the lessons learned in English came to mean more than just grammar.

Mr. Fullmer said, "My favorite part of teaching happens when my students connect what we're learning to their own lives."

History Sharpens Student Minds

History, viewed by some as a dusty, dry subject, came alive at Star Valley High School and often served as the highlight of the day for many students. We all knew that history wouldn't have been nearly as interesting without the amazing teachers who put us right in the place and time of the events we studied.

"I got into history because it seemed like one big, long story to me," said senior Susan Keeley. Sophomore Tori Guild liked the videos her history teacher used because they helped make the history seem more real.

From Nazis to the Speaker of the House, our history teachers made us become part of the history we studied.

Students Find Drive for Science

"And now something for totally different..." (Monty Python) Science was a totally different class than every other class in the school.

Why? Because we did awesome experiments, learned about chemical equations, and discovered that science has a hand in almost everything!

The cell phones in our pockets existed because somebody figured out how to connect a signal to a telephone tower. The food provided in the cafeteria tasted great because a scientist experimented with food preservation.

When asked the question, "What is your ambition in science?" Taylor Kennington said, "I want to be a veterinarian when I grow up."

Ricky Sessions, when asked her science ambition, said, "A Pediatrician is a great job because they work with kids."

Science challenged us way that not only made us think but made us want to learn more about it as well. The "S" in SVHS could have stood for science!

Human Mind a Tangled Road Map

PSYCHO: With a thumbs up, Lisa Baugh shows the need for some therapy in psychology.

SITTING AROUND: Jared Lynn and Jonathan Hoopes wait for psychology class to start.

Have you ever witnessed someone doing something incredibly stupid and wondered how anyone could act so inexplicably? Many students gained a better understanding of why people do what they do by taking sociology, the study of social behavior, and psychology, the science of the mind or of mental states and processes.

One of the newest members of the staff, Chris Howell, took on teaching a sociology class this year and did a great job. "It's pretty cool. We learn about murders, homicides, and crazy stuff like that. It's a little bit depressing but not bad," said senior Rebecca Hoffmann when talking about her experience in sociology.

Psychology, on the other hand, came across a little more up beat. Students learned everything from why we dream to what motivates us to almost every aspect of how the brain works. "The strength of women comes from the fact that psychology can't explain us. Men can simply be analyzed. In other words, I love psychology!" senior Brooke Johnson commented.

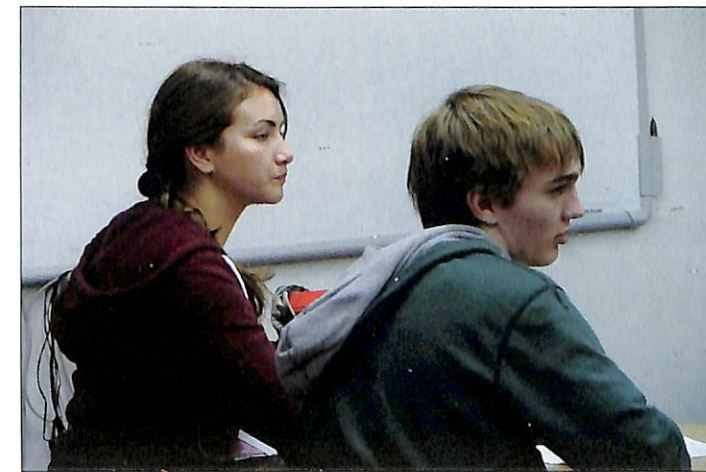

Ultimately, psychology and sociology classes taught students many different things about humans and their behaviors. Students loved these classes and walked away from them with more information than they began with and maybe even a better grasp on why their peers acted in the ways they did.

"THE CREATIVE ACT IS NOT PURE. HISTORY EVIDENCES IT. SOCIOLOGY EXTRACTS IT."

Students Explore Different Cultures

College was a goal for many students this year, and since most scholarships require at least one class of foreign language, many students begrudgingly took these classes as a requirement rather than an option.

What they didn't realize, however, was that many others took these classes as an elective for good times. Caitlin Christensen said, "I was scared to take Sign Language at first, but it's turned out to be really fun."

Although foreign language classes seemed difficult, many younger students felt thrilled for something new and challenging. Sophomore Colter Draney, in his first year Spanish, said, "It's kind of tough, but it's fun."

Some foreign language classes like Honors French, Spanish III and IV, and American Sign Language aided this year's juniors and seniors by giving them a head start on college classes. Lauren Oliver, one of the daring juniors who took Honors French said, "It's a lot of fun even though half the time I don't understand."

Foreign languages challenged minds and tested nerves, but in the end students walked away with valuable knowledge that will someday help them take on the world.

Newspaper

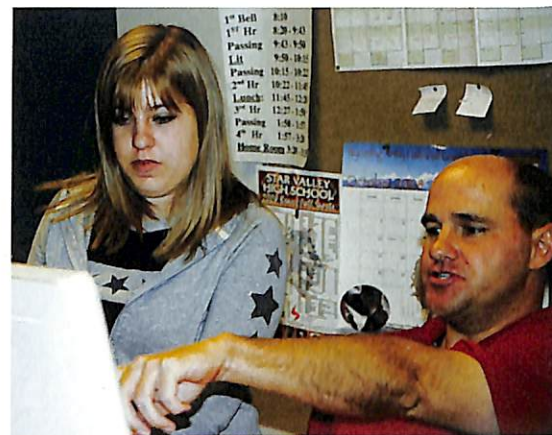

Newspaper Informs Student Readers

This year's class of newsies worked hard to make the Mountain Star the best ever. A skilled staff, lead by editor & chief Rebekah Johnson, worked with advisor Mr. Fulmer. "Newspaper has never been so good," said photographer Mitchell Allred. "Its pretty much my favorite class." The staff attended the WHSSPA convention in September of this year and returned with a bronze star award. News never sleeps and the Mountain Star staff did a good job of keeping up with it.

Yearbook Has Bright Future

Don't just read, analyze. This year's yearbook staff tried to capture the brightest and best our school had to offer. They returned with a silver merit award from the state competition in Casper. Returning staff member Josh Dustin said, "It was a lot easier this year doing layouts because I knew what I was doing; I loved how fun this class was." All in all, yearbook enjoyed a completely kicking year as they spent countless hours producing this book.

COACH WALKER MAKES THE TRIP FROM GREEN RIVER

Physical Education has always been a popular choice for the students at Star Valley High.

From the P.E. classes conducted by Coach Filibi, to the "Senior Exclusive" class lifetime sports taught by Mrs. Day we enjoyed a variety of fun P.E. classes.

This year Coach Justin Walker from Green River arrived to teach team sports and weights. Along with the new teacher, we recognized the familiar faces of Coach Clark, Mrs. Smith, Coach Filibi, and Mrs. Day who taught everything from Freshman P.E. to Drivers Ed.

Every year, hundreds of students sign up for team sports. Coach Walker's personal road lead him from the home of the Wolves, Green River, to Star Valley. "I got to know my classmates better and the more I take from Coach Walker the happier I feel!" said senior Lynk Nield about the way Coach Walker does things.

Popular games like dunk ball and wallyball got very competitive, sometimes dangerous. "My favorite moment is when Schwab turfed it on the bike ride!" said senior Raini Wolfey.

New faces appeared in the department this year as we navigated the road through high school, but the things we did in P.E. and the people we did them with formed the basis for lasting memories, fun, and good health.

Industrial Ed.

Students Gain Job Skills

Some times sitting at a desk can get a little old. Fortunately for us, a variety of classes at SVHS offered more than reading from textbooks.

The lessons taught in the industrial education department gave the students the opportunity to get their hands a little dirty.

Industrial Ed. consisted of not only machine shop, but it also included welding, drafting, cabinet making, and applied construction too.

These hard working students added new meaning to class work as they learned valuable skills and techniques to apply in the future.

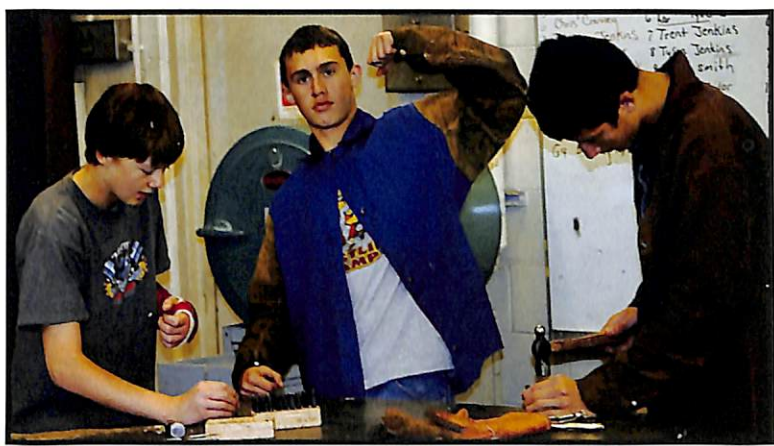

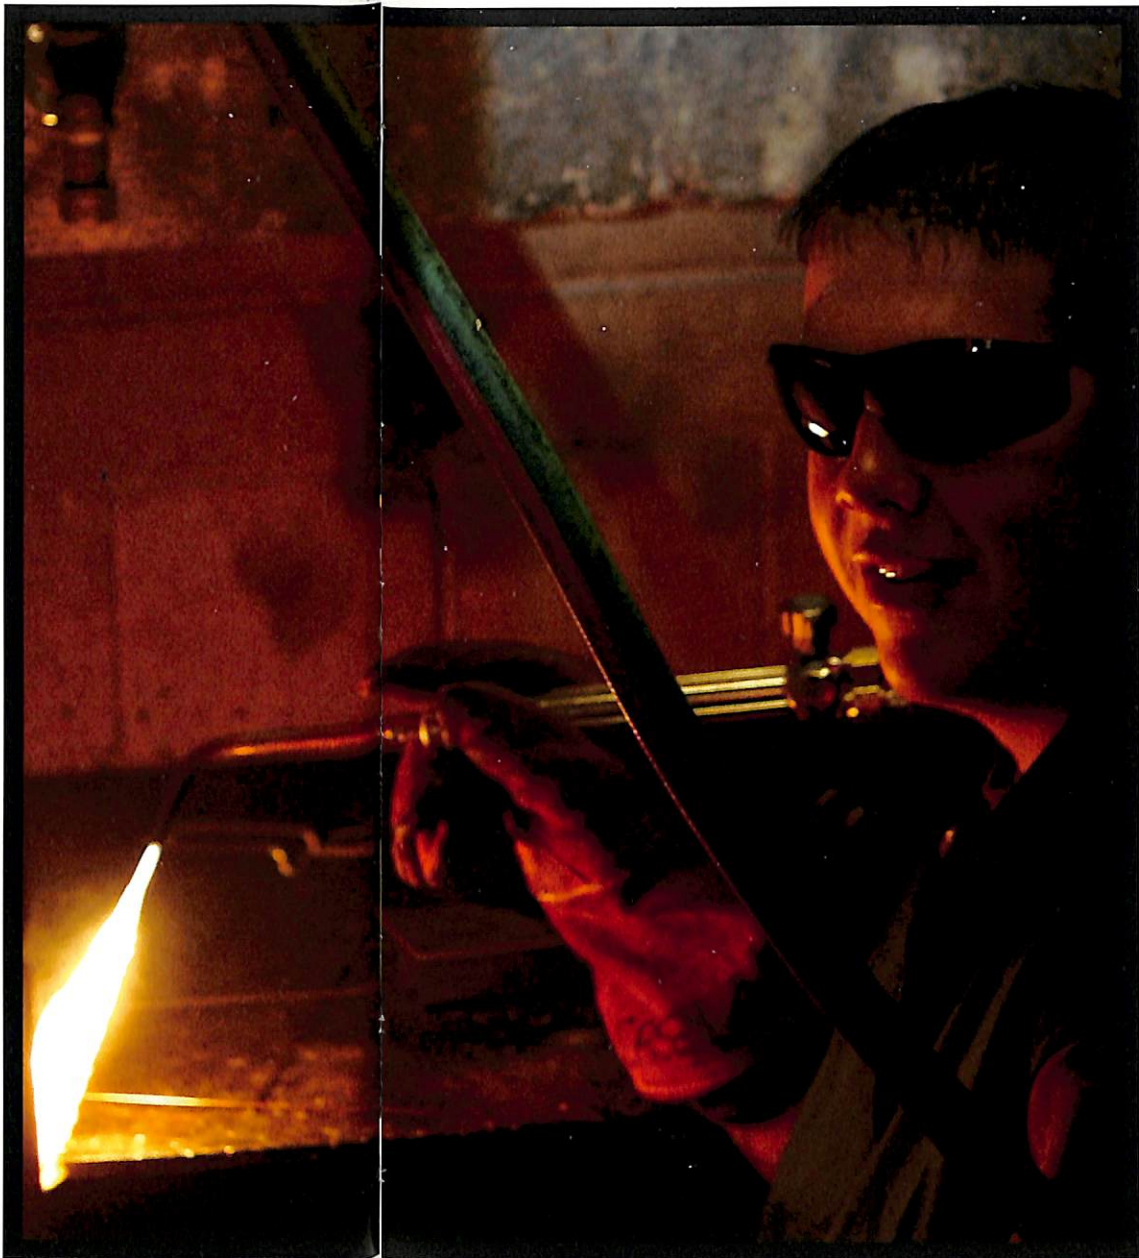

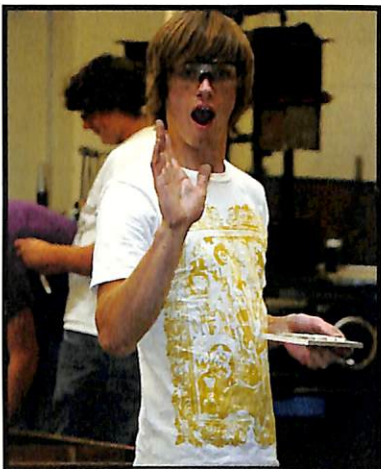

This year over 238 students enrolled in these classes, showing the popularity of this department.

When asked why applied construction was so fun, Brian Heiner said, "It's fun being with Wads and the guys."

These unique classes allowed students to understand what really goes on in the world of technology and construction and provided a chance to try something new.

SVHS Choirs

Choir Most Popular Course in School

Numbers show that these two choirs have never had more members. Concert Chorale and Mixed Choir combined to produce a roster of over 200 students this year. That constitutes over a quarter of our student body.

With four concerts during the year, training and practicing became more vigorous and time consuming. The choir classes also attended Choir Clinic and Festival during the year.

People might have joined choir for the social aspect, but whether they enjoyed it or not, they gained a talent.

Everybody listened to music. Everybody had a favorite song. Whether singing in the shower or even humming down the street, music filled our lives. Concert Chorale and Mixed Choir enhanced their ability to appreciate and make music.

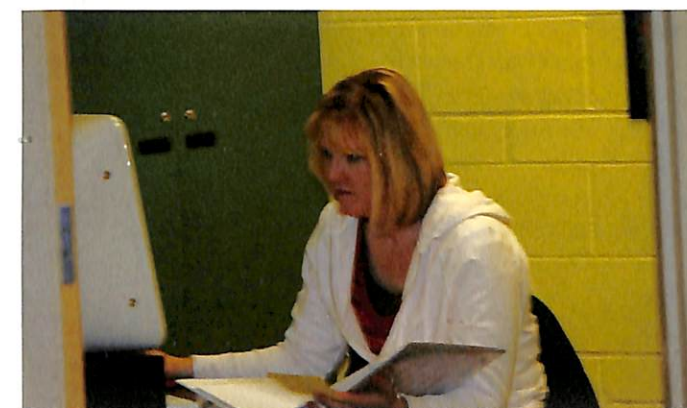

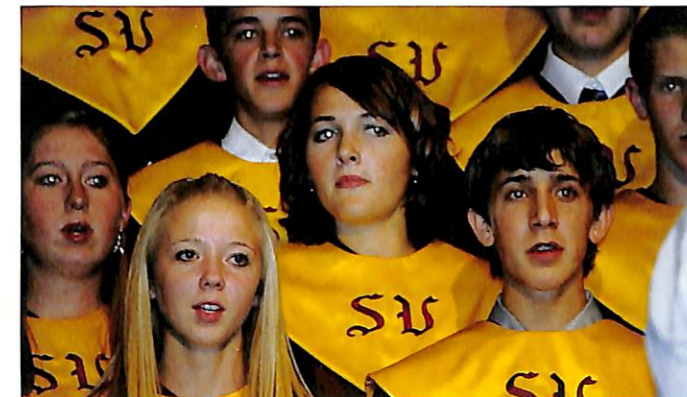

When asked the question, "What is your favorite song?" Courtney Simpson said, "Apologize, by One Republic." Michele Campbell preferred the Disney tunes and named Go The Distance from Hercules.

Hundreds of students enjoyed the chance to put the books aside and sing, at least every other day, in high school.

Treble Tones

Treble Tones and Singco Impress SVHS

Choir has remained one of the most popular classes at Star Valley High School.

One hundred and twenty girls tried out for Treble Tones and 180 students tried out for Singcopation. In all, one-third of SVHS participated in a choir this year.

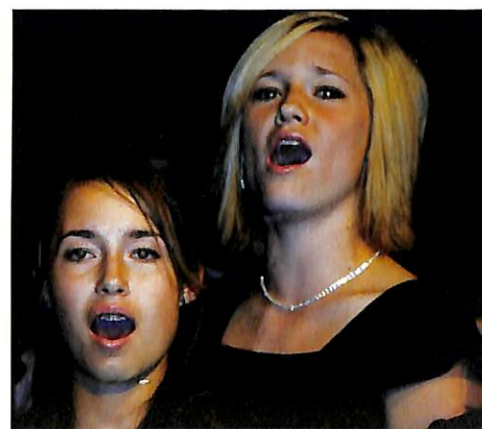

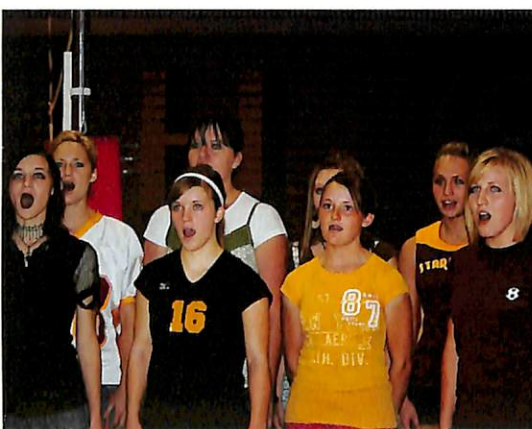

Of those singing students, only about twenty hopefuls make each of the top two show choirs Singcopation and Treble Tones.

Singcopation director Jamie Hale said, "I have the funnest job in the high school and love the enthusiasm all my students bring to class."

The traditions Treble Tones and Singcopation have made these two classes memory makers. Memories include tours, festivals, clinics, and singing at many venues like state basketball. The two groups appeared many times during the year at assemblies and throughout the community.

"Treble Tones is something new for me, but it's really fun and exciting. I love the challenge that this class brings. Every girl contributes to make choir a blast."

Band Provides School Spirit

A touch down fires up the crowd, and immediately following the score our band starts up playing the familiar fight song.

As our band played, students and all of the super fans stood and clapped to the beat as they created all the school spirit and support they could muster. The number concludes, as members of the band tap their feet to the beat, with the whole crowd joining in and chanting "SVHS"!

This year the band definitely played crowd-pleaser as they showed their talent and school spirit at both football and basketball games.

"We just go out there and play it loud and proud", Devin Sand said when asked to explain his part in providing school spirit.

This year the band had the opportunity to go compete in state marching band competition. They ended up bringing home an excellent rating after it was all said and done.

Judges score school bands at state a little differently than other sports. Each band receives a mark between one and three, with one going to the very best performances.

Our band's mark of two showed how competitive our band was with the rest of the biggest schools in the state.

Only the band members themselves will remember how much time and work they put into their art. Anyone who has ever tried to play an instrument knows how difficult it is to play well.

The fans, those of us who didn't play instruments, will always remember the SVHS fight song thanks to the effort and school spirit our band always showed in their playing.

JAZZ BAND & GUITAR

Jazz Band and Guitar String Together Beautiful Music

Whether you heard plastic picks plucking at a string or a brass instrument booming with the vibration of a spit-soaked reed, Star Valley High's stringed instruments filled our halls with music that quickly turned frowns upside down!

The guitar class gained popularity after the release of the video game Guitar Hero. "I have played Guitar Hero throughout high school and to be frank, it's too easy! So I figured it's time for the real thing," said senior Jake Bevan.

The jazz band's cool sounds only told us so much about the group. Everyone in Jazz Band learned to appreciate the soothing and wonderful sounds they improvised so well all year.

Music was a big part of our school and these groups played an important role in it.

Orchestra

Orchestra Class Develops Legacy

Orchestra has built a tradition of excellence over the years, and this year our musicians added to it. Many of orchestra's parents played a instrument and passed their devotion and talent down.

Most of these musicians started playing in elementary school and learned the value of hard work, dedication, and diligence while young.

Learning to play the violin, viola, cello, or bass is a life long talent. Instead of taking separate classes to learn music, 46 students of every type from every grade took orchestra this year and learned to appreciate fine music.

Two new classes joined the strings program this year, fiddle and bluegrass. These groups started last year as clubs before becoming legitimate classes on the schedule.

What motivated students to take orchestra? Natalee Jensen commented, "Not very many people take it, and I wanted to be unique."

Sara Gertsch said, "It was really cool to be with a group of people, and I love to play the awesome viola."

If you participated in these string groups, you helped build their legacy. If you heard them, you supported their efforts. Either way, the tradition grew.

Art & Art Club

Art Students Share Talents with Classmates

Star Valley High School had a great art program this year. With Mr. Guild and Mrs. Dockstader teaching, the students creativity just kept getting better and better.

There were many art classes students enjoyed such as Art I, Art II color, Art II Ceramics, Art III & IV, and the art animation class.

Art students also look forward to Symposium in the spring where they get to display their best artwork in Casper, WY. While there, they have a fun time and can also win awards for their entries.

The art Cclub presidency this year featured Kaylen Dockstader as president, Ryan Fluckiger as vice president, and Adam Jenkins as secretary. They took charge of all the projects that the Art Club sponsored this year.

Art club also performed many projects for the high school and the community, including painting sets for the musicals, helping paint faces at the Halloween carnival, and painting business windows at Christmas time.

For a reward, the Art Club members went on a few field trips, including seeing a wonderful exhibit at the University of Utah featuring artwork from Monet to Picasso.

Most art students agreed that this creative class was one of the most fun, most creative courses available this year. The art classes of 2008-09 gained new skills, worked hard, and played hard.

Over the years, the colors of my paintings have slowly drained out the colors of my hair.

Photography

Classes Give Students Chance to Create

This year a number of students took classes that gave them a chance to express their creative side.

Photography has grown to be a big hit as more and more students sign up for it each year. While this class is a lot of fun, it's not just about taking pictures. Students learned the importance of telling a story with each picture they snapped. They say that a picture is worth a thousand words, and that is what the photography students tried to produce with their cameras. After leaving this class many of the students found themselves armed with knowledge they could use at birthdays and weddings in the years to come.

Graphics, another popular class among students, gave students the opportunity to learn about Adobe Photoshop while Graphics II allowed participants to express themselves in many ways, like making t-shirts.

"I love graphics; it's really fun, and it's something I would really look into for a career. I hear it pays well," Nicolle Gail said when asked how she liked her graphics class.

Hands on fun with brain-liberating opportunities for expression and creativity came with taking photography and graphics this year.

Business and Computers

Students Get Down to Business

Business and computer classes help students prepare for the future. You probably knew that.

You may not have known what fun students had preparing for that future. Members of the Millionaire Club learned that credit cards, although a great financial tool, come with a big responsibility. These students also learned that managing money is simply a learned skill.

Another fun way to prepare for the future came in the marketing class, this class helped develop fundamental business skills such as basic economic, career opportunities, communication skills, and much more.

The Entrepreneurship class learned how to organize a business to make a profit and gain many skills for the future such as sales tax, salesmanship, and inventory control.

In accounting students mainly focused on learning journals, balance sheets, income statements, payroll, and other business-based tasks.

The students in these class enjoyed them. Millionaire Club member Ashley Watkins said, "I liked hangin with Saylor and Mr. E."

Fellow Brian Heiner said, "I liked the field trips we went on."

Getting down to business often meant getting down to fun at the same time. That's working smart.

TWISTERS: Jake Bevan, Travis Walters, and Brooke Johnson play twister as part of a review for a finance test.

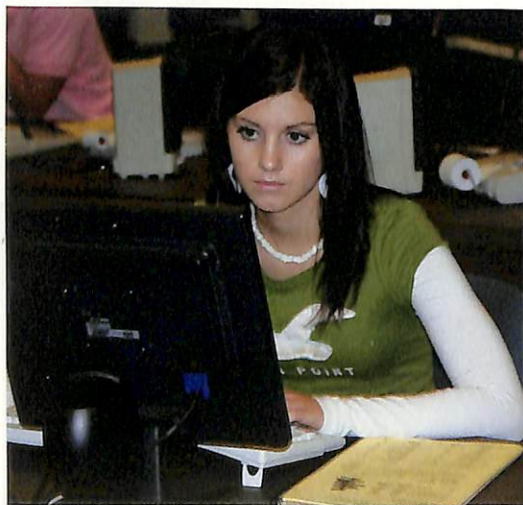

CHECK IT OUT: Christopher Cranney, Brian Heiner, and Erica MacFarland get some expertise on the importance of a will from a local business man.

Students Work to Gain Skills

During the past year, seniors went to work all throughout the valley during class time.

Seniors took CRT to gain skills with on-the-job experience. Seniors could be found doing things from working at Aspen Physical Therapy to helping at Afton Elementary.

CRT gave students a chance to work outside the classroom at real jobs with the structure and learning environment from the high school thrown in to create a unique experience in high school.

WOULD YOU RECOMMEND CRT? "Yes, it gets kids out of the classroom and it's real learning." Ashley Porter at the Middle School

Nurses Start to Train Early

This year Certified Nursing Assistant students worked hard in order to certify and gain a license as a CNA while still in high school.

CNA students also certified in First Aid and CPR. Though they practiced for weeks and the class was challenging, Gabrielle Barnes said "It was well worth it."

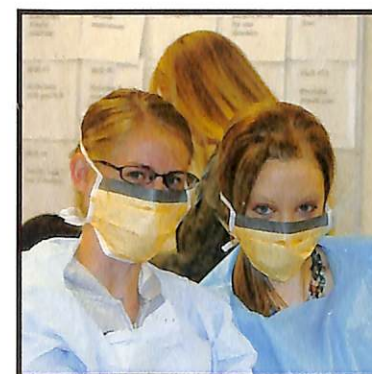

These CNA's students left high school with the skills they needed to find a job in a care center where they could make a difference.

BRAVE LIVES

Frosh Have Bright Future

There were a ton of freshmen this year, almost two-hundred kids! They showed obvious excitement to come to the high school and experience a change from the junior high and to meet new people.

"I really like high school because you get to come to school and get to interact with more people," said freshman Sarah Keehn.

The high school scene meant extra classmates to the freshmen. The new students at Star Valley High School enjoyed a schedule change, better dances, fun activities and a bit more freedom. This freedom, however, came with added responsibilities and more homework.

These new students made up a promising group and looked forward to making their mark on SVHS.

Sophomores Get Better

The class of 2011 moved up in a big way this year. Time has passed, and this crazy bunch grew up quickly.

The end of the sophomore year marked the half-way point for these students. Next year, as upper classmen, some felt glad to get on with their lives, while others experienced disappointment and wanted to stay young forever.

With only two years left to make memories, the sophomores took part in many activities this year. Every sport had a athlete representing the class of 2011.

Slader Erickson said, "The best thing about being a sophomore is that you don't get picked on by upperclassmen; instead you pick on the freshman."

The sophomores represented Star Valley well and will continue to do so. Every year the sophomore class kicks it up a notch.

Juniors Rise to Occasion

Has there ever been a better class of juniors? No way!

This year's juniors went above and beyond. They proved their diligence and endurance.

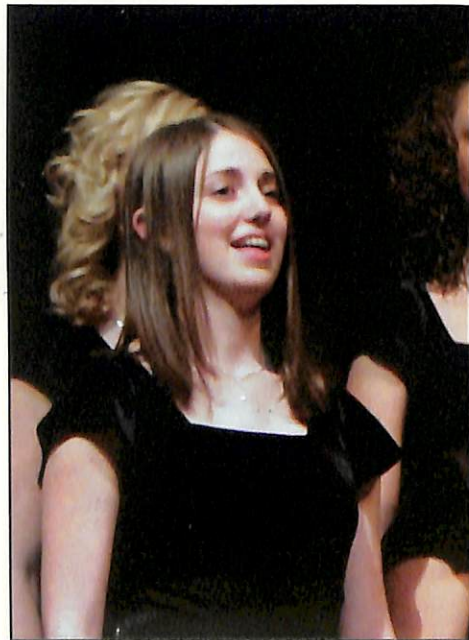

Academically, junior year was the most challenging with difficult classes and major tests like the ACT and the PAWS.

Heavy backpacks and piles of homework added lots of stress, but did this stop our amazing juniors? Of course not!

Juniors met challenges like these head-on and faced them with no fear because they knew they could succeed.

No doubt, the juniors rose to the occasion and proved their excellence.

Cross Country

Difficult but Worth It

Driven is a good word to describe cross country team members.

Cross country, the only sport that involves running for fun, takes many hours of persistent practice and non-stop dedication. In addition to practice, this type of running requires a strong mind to keep going. The option of quitting waits but rarely is taken.

Instead of getting larger as a squad, the cross country team had less recruits this year. Many athletes decided they couldn't endure the grueling practices. Only eight girls and ten boys came out, but the team enjoyed one of their best seasons ever.

All-Conference honors this year went to Lyle Dickey, Cody Brough, Jason Livingston, Alicia Inskeep, Brooke, Brittney and Tiffany Nethercott.

At state Brooke Nethercott, Jason Livingston and Cody Brough claimed fame by placing in the top ten.

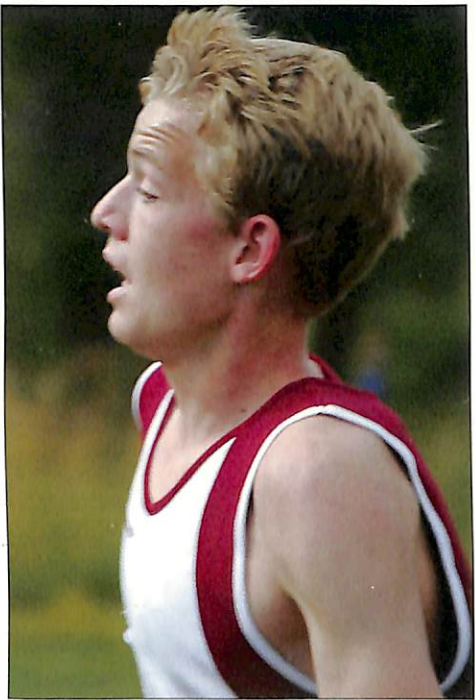

Senior athlete Tyler Skinner said, "Bus trips were my favorite."

Tiffany Nethercott said, "I am going to miss everything. The relationships the team has built is priceless. If you want to gain new friends, have fun and work hard, join the cross country team!"

Painful? Yes. Worth it? Oh, yeah.

Golfers Show Drive in 08

If you think golf is easy, you've probably never teed up a ball.

It takes golfers a life time to master their sport, but our players had a much shorter time period to achieve excellence.

Golf took a lot of hard work. Junior Cody Rich said, "Golf is hard work, knowing that one bad shot could ruin your chances of winning."

Practices in the hot sun and long bus rides to tournaments tested the golfers' commitment before school began, starting with practices in the summer and continuing until the end of September.

With individual scores contributing to the overall team score, golfers felt lots of pressure. When asked about her memories from golf, Kylee Rich said, "The bus rides were the best. We had fun putting 'Hammock' in a hammock."

This year our golfers kept it green and showed their dedication from tee to Green.

J.V./Frosh Football Experiences Success

Although the J.V. football team didn't have a perfect year, they pretty much dominated this year under the direction of new coach Chris Howell.

With a record of 6-4, the Braves proved that they did more than just look good on their new field.

While these guys did great, it didn't happen over night. They put in many hours of practice.

them worth it," said junior James Bowers.

While the J.V. team focused on winning, the freshman team did pretty well themselves.

The frosh turned in a record of 5-3 and felt proud of it. The freshman proved they're going to be a threat in football seasons to come if they keep it up.

New Coach Leads Braves

Our boys worked hard all season. Although they did not win the majority of their games, it wasn't for lack of trying. The varsity team left everything on the field, every game, whether losing or winning. With new head coach Chris Howell and playing in class 4A for only the second time, the Braves had a great building year. When the team struggled against 4A opponents, often from schools much bigger than ours, they always put that red and gold back on and kept playing hard. Sometimes our teams don't do so well, but they never give up. Neither do the fans. Game after game the fans filled the stands to the point of overflowing. This year the Braves adopted new methods and a new discipline that will pay off in years to come.

Underclassmen volleyball enjoyed a successful season. The team worked hard during practices and their many hours paid off in the long run when it came to game time. Many people noticed the talent of the team and the credit went to the freshmen coach Dahl Simpson and the J.V. coach Jane Filibi. They both felt very proud of their teams. All of the girls learned that there was more to volleyball than serving, hitting, blocking, bumping, and spiking. "I love volleyball because it is so competitive," commented sophomore Kassie Woodie. Freshman McKenzie Wellard said that her favorite part of volleyball came from working with her team mates. A girl couldn't just go out there and play; they had to have talent, love practice, and feel a little of their aggressive side. These girls worked hard to do something they love: Volleyball!

Lady Braves Rebuild

The Lady Braves fought through their 2nd tough year in 4A. Even though the season was a definite rebuilding year, this team—with no seniors—came along way.

This season will be remembered by many as the last year of coaching for legendary coach Brandy Taylor.

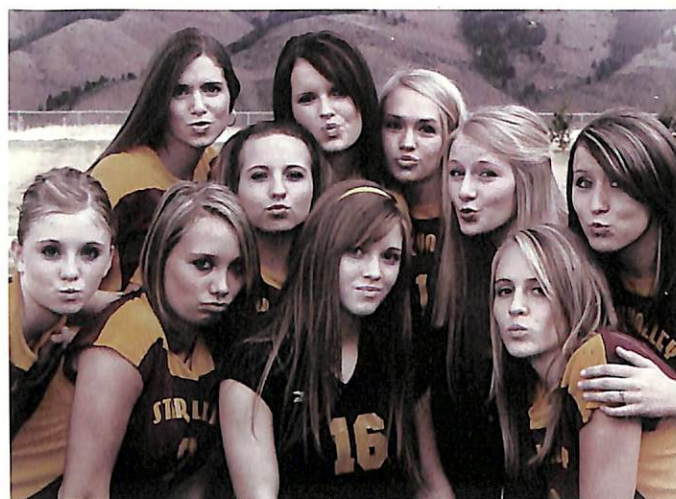

One of the highlights of the season came with an upset win for the Lady Braves against the 3rd ranked Gillette Camels.

In fact, the Lady Braves' win against the Camels opened the season at the annual Cokeville Tournament.

Never backing down from tough competition, these girls played the toughest teams including many teams from Utah and Idaho in big tournaments.

The Lady Braves have hopes of surprising people all over the state next year. Their potential this season shows the likelihood of that happening.

FROSH/JV BOYS BASKETBALL

Frosh Transition Well to New Level

With last year's entry into Wyoming's highest classification, the Star Valley Braves basketball programs focused and prepared for success in the bigger league.

The freshmen, led by Coach Shockley, showcased their winning ways by capturing the Pinedale Tournament with an average winning margin of over 35 points per game.

The J.V. also played every 4A team this year and competed hard in every game. One of the best memories of the season came in a nail-biting game against Jackson in a packed gym.

"I liked J.V. better than varsity because there was less pressure, I got to play more, and I felt like I produced more," said junior Brock Gardner.

When Star Valley basketball fans look down the road, they will remember how hard these players worked to get better and prepare for their future as varsity starters.

Braves Join Top Ranks for First Time in 4A

Boys basketball season 2008-2009 will always be remembered as the year the Braves fought hard and brought back the winning Star Valley tradition.

With a disappointing season last year, the Braves had some making up to do this season. The turn around started with new varsity coaches Mark Taylor and Kade Wilkes. J.V. coach Andy Taylor and freshmen coach Dusty Shockley joined them.

The Brave's started the season with two wins and one loss at the Cheyenne Tournament and two wins and one loss at the Flaming Gorge Tournament. Their early success told everyone that this team would compete in 4A this year. By the end of the season, the Braves had played every team in the 4A class.

As the Braves took on teams from often times bigger schools, they lived up to their team motto, "Respect is not given, it's earned."

Regionals, hosted in Capser, gave Star Valley a chance to advance for the first time ever to the 4A state tournament. Although Evanston ended that hope, the Braves look like they will only get better in the years to come.

Frosh/J.V. Girls Basketball

Lady Braves Win, A Lot

With basketball lasting throughout most of the winter season, the young Lady Braves had little down time this winter.

What time the girls did have off they dedicated to improving their basketball program.

Since the first day of practice, the freshmen came out and played nothing like the youngest team in the school. They pulled out of the season with an unbelievable 20-0 record.

The two new coaches on the staff introduced new skills and fresh ideas. The hiring of Nick Crosby as sophomore coach and Justin Walker as the J.V. coach brought more than just hope; their arrival heralded the beginning of something big.

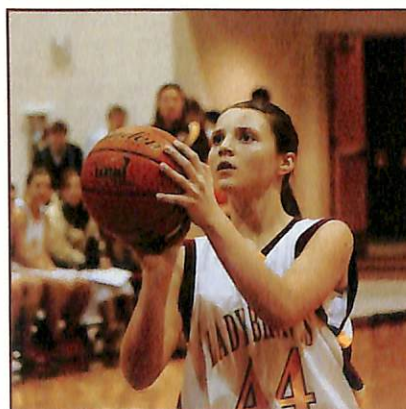

The sophomores finished out the season with a 15-2 record. Coach Crosby said, "It was my best season ever. I had a lot of fun."

Crosby wasn't the only coach that had fun. Coach Walker pulled the junior varsity through the season with only a few losses.

If the '08-'09 season was any indication, the next couple years look promising for these young players and their coaches.

GIRLS VARSITY BASKETBALL

Lady Braves Finish Season With Impressive Home Court Win

THERE WILL BE BLOOD: Randi Robinson shoots despite nursing a bloody nose.

After a hard time last year in the state's largest class, the Lady Braves had seen it all as they built for their second year in class 4A.

This year featured a young group of athletic juniors, a sophomore class with only experience lacking in their resume, and two seniors who have seen Star Valley Lady Braves Basketball through the best of times and the worst of times.

This year the Lady Braves endured the hardest schedule ever faced by this legendary program.

Playing every 4A team, minus top-ranked Gillette, the Lady Braves took the court against powerhouses like the Cheyenne schools and Sheridan.

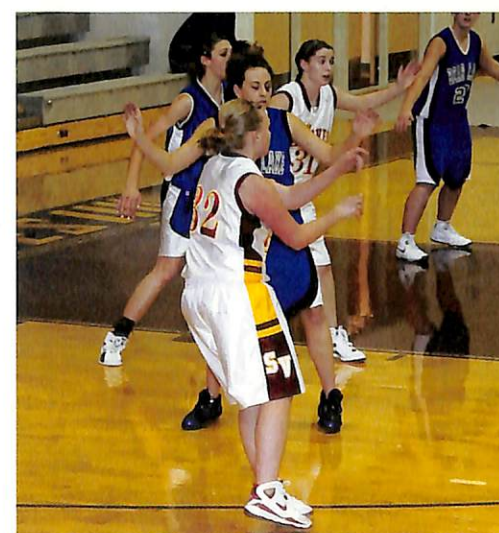

The Lady Braves, one of the youngest teams in the west, started four juniors and six underclassmen coming off the bench for heavy minutes, including two sophomores.

Playing all the top teams throughout the state, the young team struggled, but the Lady Braves took the court every time and fought tooth and nail for everything they wanted because they knew nothing came easily.

All the girl's hard work paid off with a stunning win over rival Evanston during their last game of the season in front of a home crowd that never gave up cheering for our Lady Braves.

Track Athletes Suffer to Win

Drive, motivation, perseverance. These words perfectly described Star Valley High School's indoor track team. Over the course of the season, our track kids worked extremely hard from practices to tournaments.

The athletes spent many long hours traveling on the bus. Though the roads stretched on forever, the adrenaline pumped up as soon as they reached the destination, and these runners got refreshed and ready to hit the track.

Indoor track coaches Ty Draney and Josh Henderson encouraged their kids to reach boundaries they didn't know they could achieve. "I appreciate my track coaches because they pushed me to the best of my abilities, and it made me a much better athlete," said sophomore Jennifer Gustafson.

These two coaches did a wonderful job with their team as shown by the high regard in which their team members held them.

However, this talent didn't just come naturally. Before all of their meets, these dedicated students spent many hours of practice and hard work. Over time, their long hours paid off.

"I enjoy the indoor track team because I got to compete with lots of people and meet lots of new friends," commented senior Tyler Skinner.

The team also did well in state competition. The boys ended up taking fourth place while the girls came in seventh. Junior Audrey West broke several SVHS and state records while there and looks to break them all again during her senior year.

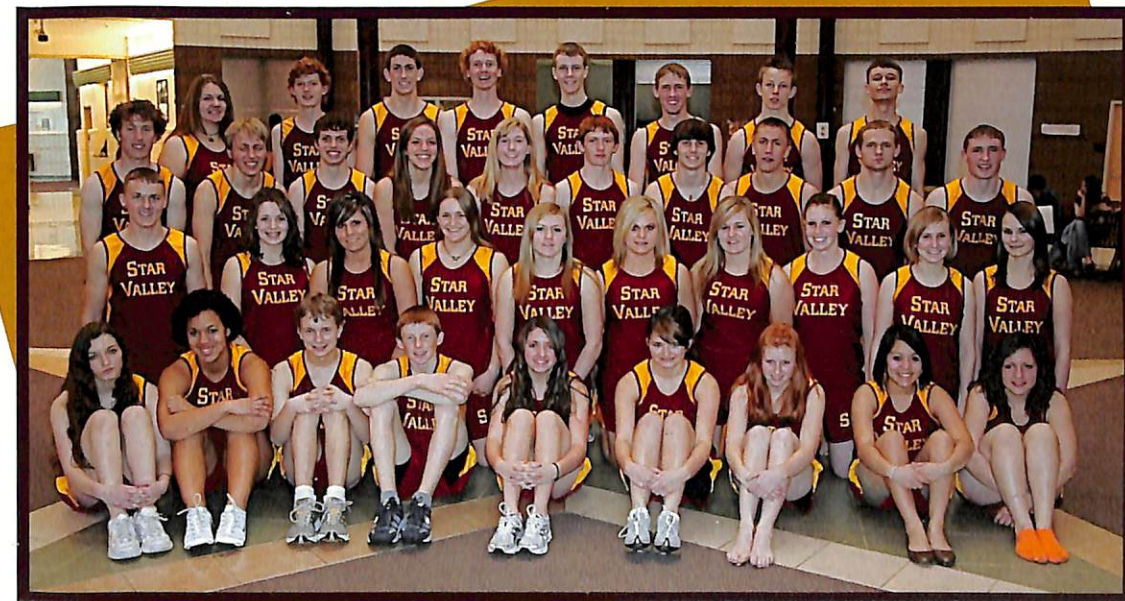

Many athletes strived hard to achieve what the Star Valley indoor track team accomplished this year in terms of endurance, practice, will power, and pride.

Heap Wins State Title

Endurance, strength, and hunger are a few words that described the wrestlers of Star Valley every year, including this one.

As they always do, injuries posed an obstacle that the wrestlers had to overcome this year. The injury to Paul Woodie prior to state made winning even more difficult.

The Braves did well this year, winning most of their duels and placing near the top in their tournaments.

"We felt good about our performance going into state," said Dakota Dana about regionals where the Braves finished second.

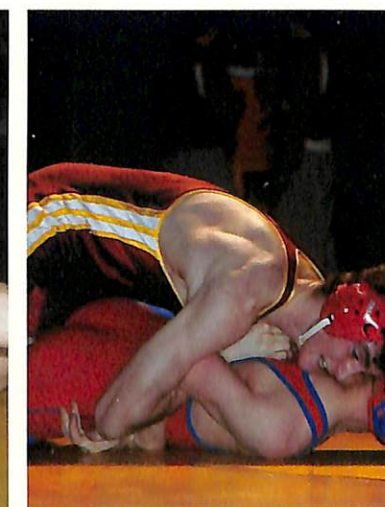

Not long after regional wrestling, the boys boarded the bus and made the long trip to Casper to face the best in the state.

The Braves managed to grasp the 5th place spot and placed a few wrestlers in the top ranks.

Hayden Heap pulled through and won an individual state title while Dakota Dana placed second and TJ Guild placed third.

Special Olympics

Special Olympians Keep It Cool

Students who studied in our special education department made up the members of the Special Olympics team. They spent the school year training in preparation for regional and state competitions with help from dedicated coaches.

The State Winter Games, held at Teton Village, gave our athletes a chance to compete in various down hill and cross-country skiing events.

They brought home numerous gold, silver and bronze medals.

Skiing was not the only activity these awesome athletes excelled at. They also enjoyed basketball, track and soccer.

Participating in Special Olympics gave these kids an opportunity to compete in activities their peers enjoy. Taking part in these sports gave them a feeling of accomplishment and success.

Brave Cadettes

Cadettes Bring New Style To The Floor

This year the Brave Cadettes went through some changes.

To begin with the team grew as freshmen became part of the varsity team and new coaches were introduced.

Not only were new faces added to Brave Cadettes this year, but the girls also incorporated new techniques and routines into their performances.

Faster and more difficult dances than ever made the floor and field come alive as these changes showed what this team could really do.

When asked to describe the hardest part about dancing on the team, freshman Nicolette Challis said, "The hardest part is how much you sacrifice for it and how much you have to push yourself."

TIME TO MARCH: Lacey Cram shouts a hand drill command to the team during Thayne's 4th of July Parade.

Cheer Paves Way For Excitement

“Hey there, crowd, do your duty, get off the stands and shake your bootie!” This and other crowd-pleasing cheers got us out of our seats during many games this year. Lots of us went to the games this year to watch, participate, and cheer along with the oh-so-familiar cheers we’ve learned to love.

The cheerleaders did an important job. How boring would the games have seemed without the cheerleaders to liven things up and get the crowd involved? “When the crowd gets involved and cheers with us it makes us feel like what we’re doing is worth while,” said senior Cheyenne Winter.

Along with supporting all our teams, the cheerleaders held fund raisers by involving the student body, like Mr. SVHS. It took hard work and preparation to get the show to run smoothly. In the end our cheerleaders orchestrated a great success. Fourteen of our peers signed up and thoroughly enjoyed themselves as they danced to the popular song “Soulja-Boy”.

“This fund raiser was so much fun because we got to get more involved with the community,” said junior Taylor Booth.

HARD WORK: Working on new cheers, Kelli Ann Johnson and Ashley Clark show precision and get it right.

BEAT THE HEAT: Morgan Barfuss, Cheyenne Winter, and Amber Smith lead the parade block.

CLAP YOUR HANDS AND ROCK THE STANDS: Stirring up the crowd, Laura Barrett and Kelly Reynolds shout out another cheer.

WHAT ARE THE NEW COACHES LIKE? “The new coaches are really fun and they have new and different ideas. It’s just like having two more teenage girls on the squad.”

WHAT DO YOU LIKE ABOUT CHEER? “I like dancing and learning new things and new techniques and like hanging out with the girls.”

The big game is by far the most important part of homecoming, but what would homecoming have been without all of the activities that lead up to the game?

This year we kicked off the crazy week with some wacky dress up days like Cowboy and Indian Day, Pajama Day, and the always popular Spirit Day.

Thursday night, on the eve of the great duel, students linked arms and raced through the stores of main street.

"This was my first year at the snake dance; I didn't really know what I was getting myself into, but it was more fun than I had imagined it would be," senior Adam Jenkins said.

After the Snake Dance spectators crowded into the bleachers to watch the junior and senior girls duke it out on the football field. This year's Powder Puff game was close and ended with a lot of frustration on the seniors behalf, when the close game ended in a tie.

"Powder Puff was frustrating, but it was fun to beat up on the juniors," said senior linebacker Myka Draney.

Homecoming week was a fun-filled week that pumped up our adrenaline and gave us a reason to drag our super fan outfits out of the closet.

Nathaniel Cheshire, a freshman, who got to enjoy his first year of the homecoming festivities, said, "It was tight! The Marching Band was my favorite."

Homecoming united the school, seniors to freshman, against one common enemy: the Marsh Valley Eagles. The Braves prevailed.

Braves Crush Eagles for Homecoming Win

Homecoming, an event we all looked forward to and waited for, came quickly and didn't disappoint.

Not even the most optimistic could have guessed the week would go so well and turn out such a great success.

With activities taking up much of the week, the students stayed busy while enjoying every second of it. The game, obviously the main highlight, played out to be all the fans hoped for, with the Braves coming out on top in their battle against the Marsh Valley Eagles.

The Homecoming dance, previously held the same night as the game, took place the next day, convincing many more students to attend.

When asked to name their favorite part of the week, senior Cassie Loveland said, "The game was definitely the best part. It was really intense."

Cassie was not the only one who had a favorite part of the week. Senior Ashley Porter said, "I loved dressing up! It's an excuse to be comfy while showing school spirit!"

A good football game, followed by a formal dance, gave students opportunities to feel school pride and look their best. If every week were homecoming week, students may have had better incentive to attend class and express their appreciation for our school. At least we had one week where everything seemed right.

Weekends

Driven Students Reach Weekend Desitations

Weekends... an eight letter word that brought a sweet smile to every face at Star Valley High School.

While Star Valley may be small, plenty of students found ways to entertain themselves during the breaks. "Students found something fun to pass the dull moments, such as hanging with friends or getting in trouble," said senior Ian McDonnell.

Though many weekend traditions remained, a new one erupted on the scene: Water balloon fights! Students from every click admit to filling up water balloons and having fun and wet wars.

Weekends provided a much-needed break to the driven students of SVHS.

SPEECH & DRAMA

Drama, Speech go full throttle in 08'

Drama gave students the chance to go the distance with opportunities to express themselves in a realistic or unrealistic way.

The members that took part in Drama I spent time learning the basics of the class, including improvisation, play reading and analysis, basic knowledge of the stage, theatre history, and a lot more.

Drama II had the opportunity to compete at state. Individuals participated and performed a part in a variety of dramatic events bringing home awards this year.

SVHS had a strong drama team. Sophomore Jessa Kierstead said, "I liked all the hard work I put into the my original script performance and how I actually performed the skit. The outcome was definitely worth it."

Communication, a major part of our society, involves skills our speech team excelled at. More than just presenting and debating, speech was divided into many different categories included interpretation, poetry, student congress and Extemporaneous.

Not only did speech team members have to travel long and far from home, they also had to abandon their comfort zones as they stepped up and competed for themselves and our school.

Drama and speech members formed a cult of personality in our school this year. Their skills and interests spiced up the collective SVHS pot.

Fall Musical

School Musical Entices Audience

This year our talented drama students performed the popular musical Grease, albeit an edited and abridged version.

Many athletes who typically choose to join the Fall play's cast were given a choice this year to act or go out for their particular sport, not both.

Forty-eight young people participated in the play, although 75 hopefuls auditioned for parts.

Grease was memorable not only for the wonderful cast, but also because of the addictive music. After attending a performance of the play, many students could be heard humming "Summer Love" and "Grease Lighting" for weeks after the final curtain came down.

Cast and plot included Danny Zuko (Chris Call) and Sandra D. (Ashley Burton) who fall in love at Rydell High School. Throughout the play, they face awkward situations unique to high school with the end result of Sandra D. joining the popular crowd and hooking up with Danny Zuko.

Musicals like this were among students' favorite music. Junior Kimberly Weber liked The Phantom of the Opera because of the music and actors.

Hailey Hokanson enjoyed The Sound of Music because she was raised watching it.

The musical this year brought a little of Broadway to SVHS, as well as a little culture.

TALENT: Tynicia Southam sings her heart out.

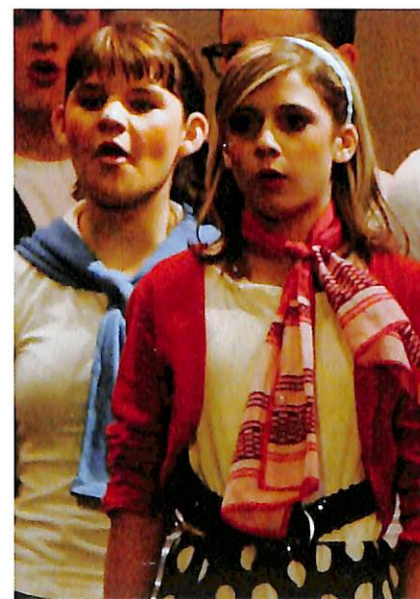

CRUSH: Chris Call and Ashley Burton share a romantic moment.

SBO's Make More Than Just Memories

The battle began last spring for this year's student body officers and class officers. Deciding to take on the huge responsibility of running for office was one thing, but getting elected into their respective positions constituted half the job, a difficult job indeed. Although taking responsibility for events and representing their peers took a ton of work, these student leaders rose to the occasion and had a fun and rewarding experience. Junior class secretary Merrillyn Johns said, "Being a Class Officer this year was so much fun! I got to know and gain relationships with people I didn't know very well." Student body president Drew Hathaway, who enjoyed his year in office, said, "It's great being a part of everything going on and getting to know everyone and helping out." Students at SVHS appreciated the good examples and hard work our class officers provided for the school and community. Voted in by their peers, these hard-working students stepped up and made our school great.

NHS Paves Roads for Bright Future

As one of the most rewarding activities for this year's seniors, National Honors Society continued to grow this year.

Getting into this club provided no small challenge for the seniors up to the task. These students had to arrive for membership with a 3.5 GPA average and type a resume for starters.

NHS membership went a long ways towards earning scholarships as well as developing leadership, and character skills. Not every senior wanted to, or could, put in the effort, but those that did never regretted it.

Having to log a total of five community hours per semester of service, NHS members went right to work when the school year started.

Involved in the decorating of the town's spook ally, pulling weeds at the new LSR building, and Braves in Action involvement were just a few of the activities these students participated in.

Ashley Burton named her favorite activity, saying, "I really enjoyed going to help LSR because we had fun as friends, and the work we did was really appreciated. It felt good to help!"

Not only did the members feel good about the service they offered, but their work didn't go unappreciated by those who received it. Kelsey Jensen said, "NHS is the best!"

FFA Gives Everyone Chances to Grow

Wyoming is a predominately agricultural state, and in Star Valley it seemed no matter where we went we were sure to see some form of farm, ranch or livestock.

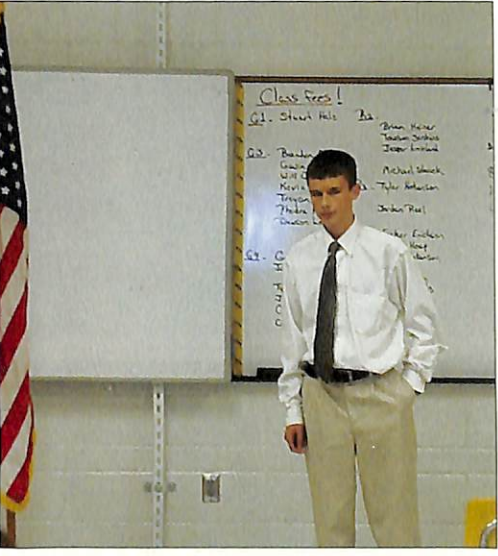

The FFA club took advantage of our surroundings and taught students how to better use our environment, not only for the benefit of agriculture but also for society in general.

FFA learned and competed in several different categories. The mechanics team competed by taking apart different mechanical objects and putting them back together like old tractors or solving problems on paper.

Another area of competition included speech. Freshmen Stevie Randall won district with her Creed Presentation, a speech presented on a special creed that all members of FFA had to learn.

FFA allowed students to sharpen their skills and taught them more about agriculture. It even offered various scholarships, giving students the opportunity to continue their education and broaden their horizons.

FFA may have seemed like it was just for people who wanted to enter agriculture, but in reality it presented many more opportunities for students to learn and grow.

Fashion

Fashion Alive and Well at SVHS

While walking the white halls of our high school, students could easily spot splashes of color spicing up their peer's ensembles.

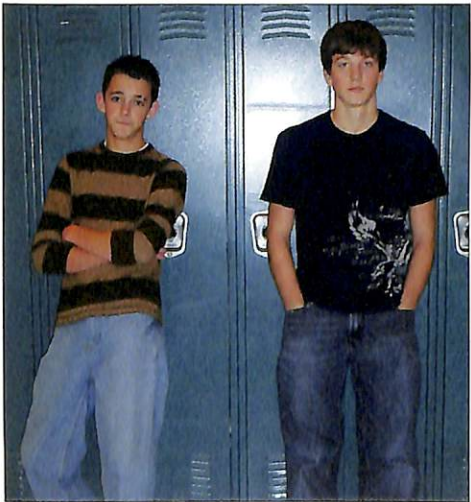

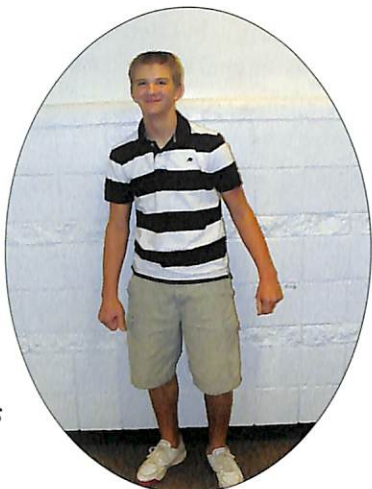

Popular brands such as Hollister, American Eagle, Aeropostale, and Wetseal commonly made up student outfits along with skinny jeans to polos to the ever popular khaki shorts.

The hallways converted to catwalks as frosh scurried timidly about, sophs pretended not to hurry as they briskly walked to class, juniors slid through doors just as the bell rang, and seniors strutted along-late as usual.

Cars Important Part of School Life

The family mini-van, an old pick-up truck, or a brand new gift from the parents. A myriad of automobiles filed into the parking lot on many brisk S.V. mornings.

Approximately 30% of Star Valley High students drove to school everyday. Since we enjoyed an open campus again this year, drivers had to quickly leave the campus for lunch if they didn't want to wait in lunch-exodus traffic.

Some of this year's popular lunch spots included Family Thriftway, Subway, Taco Time, and even Maverick.

Swing Club

Over 200 Students Enjoy Swing Club

Star Valley High School's Swing Club was faithful and motivated! The club boasted over two hundred students, and the kids had a great time with the Swing Club director, Andrea Holyoak.

The kids had to try out for certain dances by learning a part of that dance, but all who wanted to dance enjoyed the chance. The students took part in the dance the judges thought they executed best.

The Swing Club presidency featured Alicia Inskip, Kim Weber, Tannon Hamilton, and Townsen Kennington. They were able to help Andrea pick out music and dances for the different Swing groups.

Participants contributed much of their personal time to practices in the auditorium and the middle school gym. While there, they learned many hard flips, turns, lifts, and other difficult dance moves.

After learning their dances, they staged an impressive Christmas show in December. Dance types included salsa, swing, waltz, and two forms of foxtrot. Singers also performed at the concert. The show's proceeds went to two-year-old Kenner Johnson who fell out of a two story building. Before the show, Brittney Nethercott stated, "I'm really looking forward to our performances."

All of the kids enjoyed swing club this year. Even though they put in a lot of hard work, everybody learned many things and had a marvelous time.

"I love swing club because it gives you a chance to have fun and hang out with your friends," commented freshman Lindsay Barnes. Everyone agreed that Swing Club gave many students an opportunity to have a great time.

Pirates Make For Night of Fun

This year's Sadie Hawkins theme was a little more exotic than usual.

Students found their more creative side with the pirate theme. Some made their own T-shirts and donned pirate bandannas and an assortment of flashy jewelry.

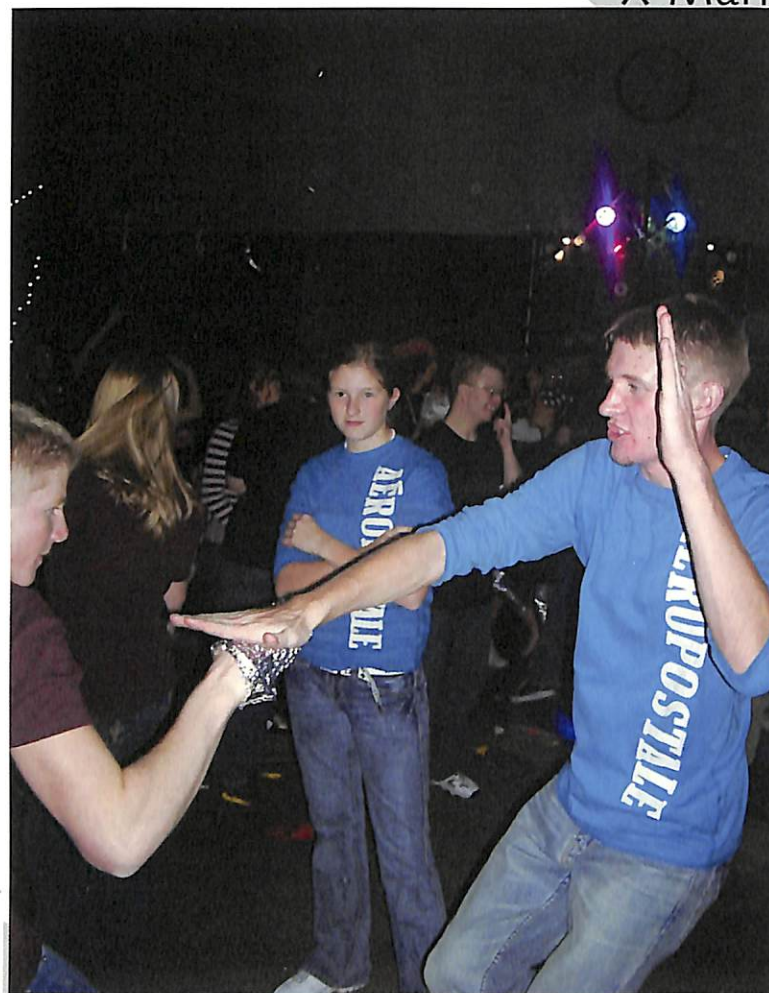

The dance was fit for any scallywag. "We were dirty pirates to go along with the theme. We had a very laid back fun date, and we danced the night away," said senior Kirsten Robbins

Finding the perfect date idea was sometimes a little difficult. Some dates played laser tag, while others enjoyed wild outdoor adventures. Some just spent a nice night watching movies at the big dance.

One thing was for certain: In a small town like Star Valley, entertainment came the hard way, but when given the opportunity, these students really knew how to have a fun time.

Rodeo Club

Rodeo Club Excites

Although not a school-sponsored activity, Rodeo club continued to grow and prosper.

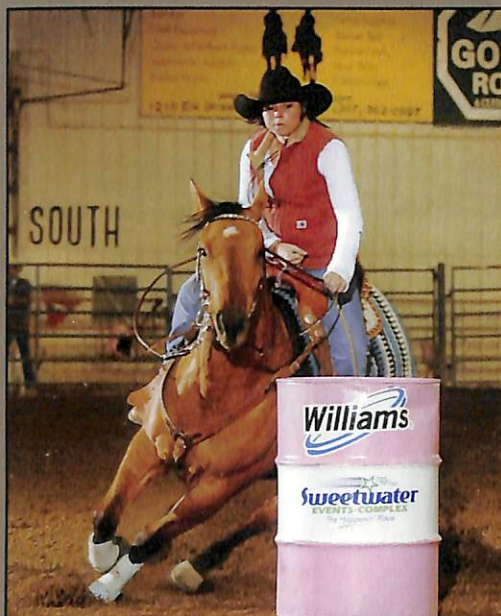

As one of Star Valley High School's most intriguing activities, the rodeo club goes beyond challenging. Having to work hard all summer and travel to many different states, this thing they call rodeo takes dedication from every member.

With many activities to choose from like barrel racing, pole bending and fan favorite bull riding, rodeo enthralles those who do it and those who watch it.

Starting before Spring arrives, members practice in indoor facilities like Trail Ridge in Etna. The members eagerly await and prepare for upcoming competitions.

When asked about the club, sophomore Dawson Loveland said, "It's fun. And you meet new people."

More and more young cowboys and cowgirls continuing to become involved in this popular organization. Cowboy up!

Students Love Hunting

Hunting

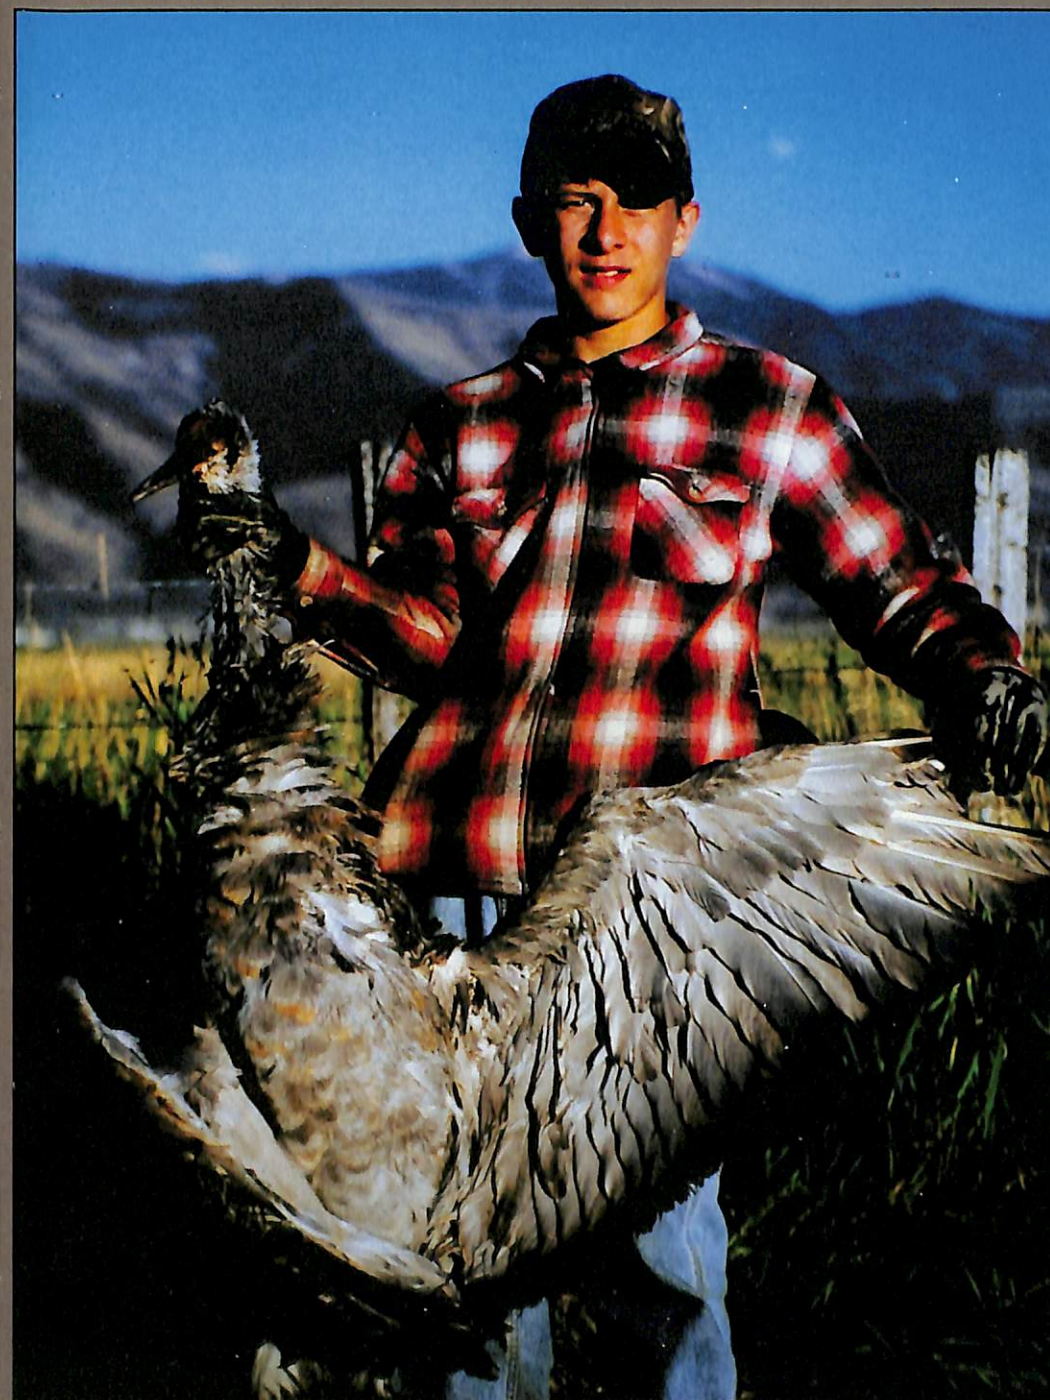

In the absence of a bustling city life, many Star Valley students found a different way to have fun, and they filled that void with a sport that thrilled and enthralled almost everyone who took it up. As one of our favorite pastimes, hunting kept students busy and active year round.

Most thought of men going out each time the word hunting came up, but many girls found it even more of a thrill.

As a sport enjoyed by a cross-section of people, hunting unified many students in a common pursuit. All hunting required was a love of the outdoors and the gumption it took to climb a mountain or endure tough weather conditions.

According to many hunters, this sport was their passion and made life more exciting and school more tolerable!

Hunting united students in an activity well-suited to life in Star Valley.

Fans

Brave Fans Find Ways to Support Their Teams

Many types of fans filled the stands at our games this year.

We had super fans, regular fans and some fans that just dressed up a little bit for no apparent reason.

Some of the quietest, most conservative students from the classrooms of our school became new people once the face paint went on.

Our fans liked to stand out and express themselves with raucous chants and lots of screaming in support of our Braves.

Being fun and original, Merrillyn Johns said, "It was fun to go crazy and have fun while dressing up, screaming loud and supporting the teams in every way."

Many fans went all out in showing their support for our teams. Girlfriends of the football players wore their boys' jerseys with pride, even though they weren't supposed to.

Most of all the students who took their colorful selves to the games did so because it gave them an outlet, a way to feel unique and out of the ordinary for a short time.

Many of these fans probably couldn't have thrown a touch-down pass or hit a three-pointer, but they did their part to contribute to our school's success on the court, mat, and field.

Our super fans lived for the chance to dress up and show their school pride.

COUCH TIME: Derian Martin, Sharon Rosenbaum, Sean Pierson, Towson Jenkins, and Brian Heiner relax while watching the game.

Club Works to Stop Drugs

R.A.D. students stayed extremely motivated all year.

With Mr. Daniels as their advisor and Jordan Ames, Kora Cleverley, and Ashley Watkins in the presidency, the whole club worked hard to raise awareness about the dangers of drugs, tobacco, and alcohol.

R.A.D. members took charge of Red Ribbon Week and promoted unity in the student body to Rise Against Drugs by holding an assembly for students decked out with red ribbons.

Mr. Daniels said, "R.A.D. is cool because it has empowered students to make a difference in our community."

INSPIRING: Kadi Erickson sings a wonderful song during the Christmas talent assembly.

Assemblies

Assemblies Delight Student Body

All throughout the year students enjoyed many assemblies. Held at least once a month, we always enjoyed a break from school to see what was in store for us during the assemblies.

The Veteran's Day assembly motivated and touched us. Veterans who served in several different wars took the stage, and Concert Chorale sang "Peace Unto You" while students listened respectfully.

Happy Hands Assembly, a sign language club from Preston, Idaho, with roots in the movie Napoleon Dynamite, signed songs for student enjoyment.

The school also held many assemblies honoring and supporting the many athletes, musicians, actors, and dancers amongst us. "I enjoy assemblies because you almost always learn something about the school," commented sophomore MaKenzie Radford. Everybody felt grateful to get out of class and settle in the auditorium for a great time.

Assemblies gave us a break from school work and class time while appreciating the talents of our peers and honoring them for their hard work in various things.

PEACE UNTO YOU: Concert Chorale sings a beautiful song at the Veteran's Day assembly to honor and respect our veterans and those serving today.

CONFIDENCE: Brock and Kel-sea Gardner stand tall in the state golf pep rally assembly.

THREE MUSKETEERS: Nathan Merritt, Michael Rider, and Caleb McArthur show X-country pride.

SCIENCE CLUB

Young Scientists Represent School

Five, four, three, two, one BUZZZZ. The science club showed their stuff at a jeopardy-style state competition this year.

Science Club, however, wasn't about how much science you could spout off the top of your head, but rather about the friendships that participants built throughout the year.

Each of these members worked hard in every challenge they faced and enjoyed taking part in a variety of activities.

Other than the science bowl, the club also participated at the science olympiad. One of the projects for this event included an electric car powered by AA batteries built by Rex Bagley.

Bagley said, "The best thing about science club is that we learned things we would have never learned in an actual science class!"

Nile Perks said, "The greatest thing in the club is that we had the opportunity to build projects for the science olympiad."

As these gifted students worked and learned together, they became more like a family than a club. They pushed each other and themselves to overcome the obstacles facing them in the field of science. In the process they represented our school in an intelligent way.

MR. SVHS

Tyler Skinner Named 2009 Mr. SVHS

Seeing the best guys SVHS had to offer take the stage and put on a show helped warm up an otherwise cold Star Valley winter.

Mr. SVHS was an enjoyable entertainment hosted by the cheerleaders to raise money for uniforms and other expenses.

All of the senior boys who took part in Mr. SVHS enjoyed it. Chris Lowe said, "I liked having fun and being able to participate."

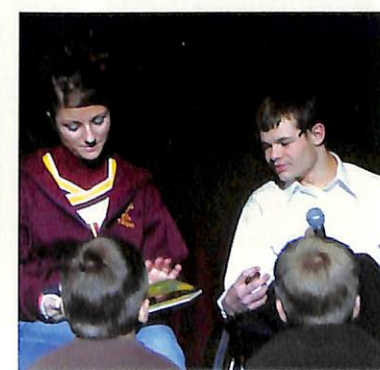

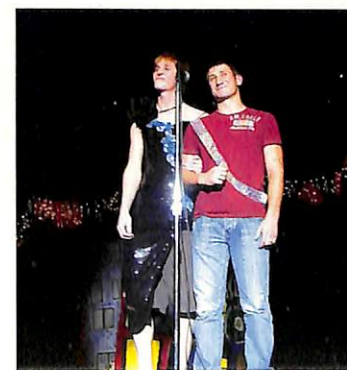

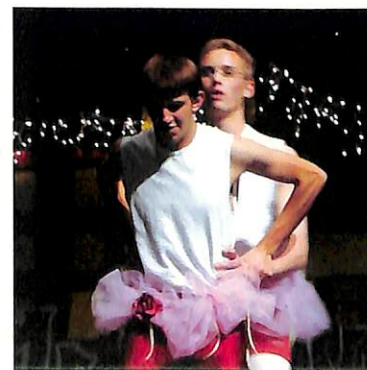

Fellow senior Kevin Brough added, "It gave me the chance to party like a rock star."

Contestant Andy McBride said it was hilarious to watch people make goofs of themselves.

Tyler Skinner eventually claimed the crown of Mr. SVHS while Chris Call and Tyson Bagley finished closely behind as runners-up. All of these good sports put on a great show for a good cause.

X-tra Activites

Students Have Fun Out Of School

Once the hard work finished at the end of the day, everyone wanted a break. Every now and then we all felt like a change of scene.

Having the opportunity to do something productive, entertaining, and interesting outside of school gave everyone something to look forward to at the end of the school day.

Whether fourwheeling, going on a date, joining the swing club, or snowboarding, students found ways to stay entertained and engaged outside of school during the school year.

Junior Aislinn Lewis said, "When I'm not saving the whales, I'm finding a cure for cancer."

Some of us may not have spent our extra time saving the world or making medical history, but we all passed time on our own finding ways to have fun.

Even though school provided activities for many students, most of us wanted some time to relax and rejuvenate doing the things unique to only us or hanging out with friends we were too busy to see during the school week.. Extra activities allowed us to do just that.

What are your extra activities?

I go snowboarding on the weekends and anytime we don't have school.

SVHS Teachers Deliver Again

Strict is a word that usually didn't describe our teachers here at Star Valley High School.

Many students looked to their teachers as their friends, someone we could learn from but who still cared about each of us.

Our teachers always waited, ready to guide us and help us along our road to success. Though sometimes they acted tough on us, they only wanted to help us succeed.

We had a few new teachers on staff this year, including Mr. Justin Walker, Mrs. Diana Kleeman, and Mr. Christopher Howell. Each added to our school as well as staff.

This year the seniors, along with their superlatives, voted for the two teachers that had an influence on them throughout their high school career.

The vote was a tight race, but Mr. Guild—better known as simply Guild—and the beloved Mrs. Erickson—known to students as Polly—won the title of most influential teachers.

Our teachers are loved and respected here at SVHS and those seniors who left us will miss the teachers they looked up to and always remember what they taught.

We have traveled this stretch of highway and come to a fork in the road. Some of us will go one way, others will choose a different route. Regardless of where our future roads take us, we will always have the memory of having traveled together for a short time down an unforgettable road, each of us driven to succeed, excel, and sometimes just get the drive over with. Look back at the long winding road of high school through this rear-view mirror, this year book. Four years of waiting, and we finally made it! We passed the road signs that hinted to our destinations.

New road await us; we have only to drive them. We all reached the crossroads appearing after graduation, yet we speed towards what life has in store for us with great anticipation and no thought of yielding. Driven...

Wikki-up, volume 84 was produced by the yearbook staff at Star Valley High School in Afton, Wyoming and was printed by Herff Jones, Inc. in Logan, Utah. The account was serviced by representative Todd Jones and Lesli Hawkes. The cover was designed by Ian McDonnell and incorporated a four color design which was lithographed onto the Vista Litho color background. The endsheets are printed on Vibracolor white paper using CMYK inks. The book's 160 pages are printed on eighty pound paper stock. The eighty-fourth volume includes 160 pages in full color with an eight page tip-in. All body copy was set in 10 point Cheltenham Light font, and captions were 12 point Cheltenham italic. Headline fonts included Syntax and Syntax Bold. Layouts were submitted to the plant through electronic upload. Wikki-up was produced using Adobe Indesign CS3 and Adobe Photoshop on Macintosh iMac 1.83 GHz Intel Core Duo computers. Professional portraits were provided by Heidi Erickson and Lasting Impressions. The 650 sold copies of the book were sold for $45.00.
